MODERNIZE THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE SAYS PRESIDENT

Thousands Thrilled by Address at Independence Square, Philadelphia.

AMERICA FOR THE RIGHT

PANAMA TOLLS MATTER

United States Must Keep Her Obligations.

The Treaty With England Might be a Mistake, But Its Meaning Cannot be Mistaken is Idea Expressed by Wilson.

Philadelphia, July 4.—Advocating the modernizing of the Declaration of Independence by applying its principles to the business, the politics and the foreign policies of America, President Wilson today thrilled a huge crowd assembled in Independence Square within a few feet of where the original Declaration was signed.

The President touched on Mexico, the Panama tolls repeal controversy, his anti-trust programme, business conditions and his ideas of modern patriotism. Pounding his fist on the table on which the Declaration of Independence was signed, he declared Americans today must manage their affairs in a way to do honor to the founders of the Nation. There are men in Washington today, he declared, whose patriotism is not shown but who accomplish great patriotic things. They are staying in Washington, doing their duty, keeping a quorum in each House of Congress to do business. "And I am mighty glad to stay there and stick by them," he added.

Touching on business conditions of the country, President Wilson said a great many allegations of facts were being made, but that a great many of these facts do not tally with each other.

"Are these men trying to serve their country or something smaller than their country?" the President asked. "If they love America and there is anything wrong, it is their business to put their hands to the task and set it right."

Small Faction Rule.

Eighty-five per cent of the Mexican people, the President said in touching on Mexico, never have had a right to have a "look in" on their government, while the other 15 per cent were running it.

"Now the American people have a heart that beats for them just as it beats for other millions," Mr. Wilson continued, "I hear a great deal about the property loss in Mexico and I regret that with all my heart, but back of it all is a struggling people. Let us not forget that struggle in watching what is going on in front."

"I would be ashamed of the flag if we did anything outside this country which we would not do in it," the President declared.

Speaking on Panama tolls, the President said the treaty with England might be a mistake, but its meaning cannot be mistaken, and he believed in keeping the nation's obligations. He believed in keeping the name of the United States unquestioned and unsullied.

Before the President got his speech well under way the crowd surged forward in such confusion that a panic was threatened. Two companies of marines and sailors stood before the speaker's stand and the President was forced to stop several times, but finally got the crowd under control.

"Te Declaration of Independence," said the President in the course of his address, "does not mean anything to us merely in its general statements unless we can append to it a similarly specific body of particulars as to what we consider our liberty to consist of."

Liberty, he declared, consists in the translation of general declarations as to the rights of man into definite action.

Patriotism, he said, consists of some very practical things, among which the President enumerated the stay of members of the House and Senate, "in hot Washington to maintain a quorum of the House and transact public business.

Will Stay With Congress.

"I honor them for it," he said, "and I am mighty glad to stay there and stick by them until it is over.

"It is patriotic also to know what the facts are and to face them with candor," the President continued. "I have heard a great many facts stated about the present business conditions in this country, for example—a great many allegations of facts, at any rate—and it is strange that these facts as stated do not tally with each other.

"Now the truth always matches the truth, and when I find gentlemen insisting that everything is going wrong when it is demonstrable that most things are going right, I wonder what they are trying to do. Are they trying to serve the country, or are they trying to serve something smaller than the country? Are they trying to put hope into the hearts of men who work and toil every day, or rather are they putting discouragement and despair into these hearts? If they love America and anything is wrong, it is their duty to put their hands to the task of setting it right.

* * * I have had some experiences in the last 14 months which have not been entirely refreshing. It was universally admitted that the banking system of this country needed re-organization. We set the best minds we could find to the task of discovering the best method of re-organization. We met with hardly anything but resistance from the bankers of this country or at least from the majority of those who said anything. And yet, the very next day after the act was passed there was an universal chorus of applause from the bankers of the United States. Now, if it was wrong the day before it was passed, why was it right the day after it was passed? * * *

"You know the Declaration of Independence has, in one sense, lost its significance. Nobody believed it could be independent when that document was written.

Knowledge of Independence.

"Now nobody could dare to doubt we are independent. But it is one thing to be independent and it is another thing to know what to do with your independence. One of the most serious questions for sober minded men to address themselves to in these United States is what are we going to do with the influence and power of this great nation. Are we going to play the old role of using that power for our aggrandizement and material benefit?

"The Department of State is constantly called upon to back up commercial enterprises and the industrial enterprises of the United States in foreign countries, and it at one time went so far in that direction that all its diplomacy was designated as 'dollar diplomacy.' It was for supporting every man who wanted to earn anything if he were an American. Now there is a limit to that. I have been preaching year upon year for the United States to show her wit, skill and enterprise in every country of the world. But there is a limit laid upon us more than any other nation in the world. We set up this nation and we propose to set it up on the rights of man. We did not name any differences between one race and another; we did not set up any barriers against any particular race or people, but opened our gates to the world, and said all men who wish to be free to come to us and they will be welcome. We said this independence is not merely for us—a selfish thing for our own private use, but for everybody to whom we can find the means of extending it.

Cannot Change Policy.

"Now we cannot, with that oath taken in our youth, we cannot, with that great idea set before us when we were a young people and practically only a scant three million people, take upon ourselves now that we are hundred million, any conception of duty than what we entertained at that time. So if American enterprise in foreign countries, particularly in those foreign countries which are not strong enough to resist us takes the shape of imposing upon and exploiting the mass of the people of that country, it ought to be stopped.

"I am willing to get anything for any American that money can buy except the rights of other men. I will not help any man buy a power he should not exercise over his fellow being. You know what big question there is in Mexico. Eighty-five per cent of the Mexican people have never been allowed to have a look in in regard to their government and the rights which have been exercised by the other 15 per cent. Do you suppose that circumstances is not sometimes in my thoughts? I know the American people have a heart that will beat for those millions in Mexico and when they once know what is at stake in Mexico they will know what ought to be done in Mexico.

Struggle of the People.

"You hear a great deal stated about the property loss in Mexico, and I deplore it with all my heart. Upon the conclusion of the present disturbed condition in Mexico undoubtedly those who have lost properties ought to be compensated.

"Man's individual rights have met with many deplorable accidents, but back of it all is the struggle of the people and while we think of the one in the foreground, let us not forget the other in the background.

"Every patriotic American is a man who is not niggardly and selfish in the things he needs that make for human liberty and the rights of man, but wants to share it with the whole world. And he is never so proud of the great flag as when it means for other people as well as himself the symbol of liberty and freedom. I would be ashamed of this flag if it ever did anything outside of America that we would not permit it to do inside of America. We stand for the mass of men, women and children make up the vitality of every nation.

"While you were trying to get a front seat just now I was requested to turn around and address the distinguished company behind me, but I said that while I had a great respect for them, and even quite an affection for some of them, the real people were on this side (indicating the audience). If I had done anything else, I could not have proved I spoke on Independence Day because that great document written by that aristocrat, Thomas Jefferson, was written by a man whose heart was as big as all mankind and he was thinking of them, not himself, when he penned that immortal document.

Meaning Unmistakable.

"So I say, it is patriotic sometimes to regard the honor of this country in preference to its material interests. Would you rather be despised by all the nations of the world as incapable of keeping your treaty obligations or would you rather have free tolls for American ships? The treaty may have been a mistake, but its meaning was unmistakable. When I have made a promise as a man I try to keep it. The most honorable and distinguished nation in the world is the nation that can keep its promises to its own hurt.

"I want to say, parenthetically, that I don't think anybody was hurt. I am not enthusiastic for subsidies to a monopoly. But, assuming that was a matter of enthusiasm, I am much more enthusiastic for keeping the integrity of the United States absolutely unquestioned and unsullied.

Successful Patriotism.

"Popularity is not always successful patriotism. The most patriotic man is sometimes the man who goes in the direction in which he thinks he is right, whether or not he thinks anybody agree with him, because it is patriotic to sacrifice yourself if you think you are right. Do not blame anybody else if they do not agree with you. That is not the point. Do not die with bitterness in your heart

RENEW SEARCH FOR DEADLY REVOLVER

With Which Popular Society Matron Was Slain

POLICE ARE CONFIDENT

Six Detectives Return to Search for Missing Thirty-Eight Calibre Revolver—Funeral of Mrs. Bailey Held Yesterday.

Freeport, N. Y., July 4.—Half a dozen detectives today renewed their search for the revolver with which Mrs. Louise Bailey was slain Tuesday night in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman. Unless there is a radical change in the trend of the case, which an assistant district attorney admitted to the authorities consider improbable, this revolver is the one piece of evidence by which they actually can connect any one with the murder.

Photographs of a woman suspect were obtained today by private detectives who will endeavor to have pawnbrokers in New York and New Jersey cities identify them as likenesses of a woman they suspect of having purchased a revolver. The detectives also declared they were anxious to determine what outgoing calls passed over the telephone at the Carman home for several days prior to the murder, and to learn the identity of two strange women who, Mrs. Carman and her sister, Mrs. Ida Powell, said they had seen hurrying from the Carman home immediately after the murder.

The investigators refused to say tonight whether they had obtained a list of Dr. Carman's women patients and would see every one of them to determine whether it was any of theid number who sped from the house while Mrs. Bailey was lying on the floor of the physician's office. The identity of these women, if they were in the house, as Mrs. Carman and her sister said, is a mystery detectives are anxious to solve.

The funeral of Mrs. Bailey was held today at the Bailey home in Hempstead. Services were private.

Mrs. Carman Succumbs.

Dr. Carman today announced that his wife had succumbed to the strain she had been under since the murder.

"She kept herself well under control on the stand yesterday," the physician said, "but on returning home she had to give in. Today she is not feeling well and can see no one.

"As for the testimony offered yesterday by George Golder, he was mistaken when he said he saw my wife on the front porch and around the house just before, and just after, Mrs. Bailey was killed. My wife told the truth and all she knew. Neither of us will have anything more to say until the inquest is ended."

When the inquest is resumed Monday, it was learned today, an affidavit from Celia Coleman, a negro maid in the Carman home, will be introduced. She swears Mrs. Carman was not in the kitchen the night of the murder, and that neither she nor any one else, passed in or out of the back door before the shot was fired.

Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, the nurse whom Mrs. Carman saw kiss Dr. Carman, will appear at the inquest. Miss Hazel Coombs, a patient waiting to see the physician, but who says she left the house just before the murder, will be a witness as well as Miss Madeline Bailey, daughter of the victim, who will it is said, testify about a talk her mother had over the telephone.

District Attorney Smith late tonight announced that after a hard day's work the scope of his investigations had so far broadened that he has three women and one man under surveillance on suspicion of having shot Mrs. Bailey.

All the women are patients of the physician, the prosecutor said. The man is a resident of Freeport.

Mr. Smith would not give the names of any of the new suspects, but said they all were being watched by detectives.

Immediately after making the announcement about additional suspects, District Attorney Smith ordered Sheriff Pettitt to place more detectives on guard about the Carman home and gave instructions to the police to send a larger number of men for duty there also.

WARRING NATION HOLDS ELECTION

Ballot Today for President of Mexico.

HUERTA WILL LEAVE

Unofficial Advices Reach Washington That Pedro Lascaurain Will be Chosen and Huerta Will Go to Foreign Country.

Washington, July 4.—Unofficial advices reached Washington tonight that Pedro Lascurain, formerly secretary of State in Madero's cabinet, would be chosen tomorrow to succeed Gen. Huerta as president of Mexico, and that Huerta, choosing his former post as chief of staff of the army, would be dispatched to a foreign post, probably France.

It was admitted that voters in tomorrow's election would be few, only those residing in the district of Mexico City participating. Candidates for the presidency, besides Lascaurain, were said to ge Gens. Refugio Velascez and Garcia Pena. Whoever might be elected was reported ready to turn over the presidency to a provisional government and Gen. Huerta was reported willing to leave the country.

According to word reaching Washington, Gen. Huerta is prepared to leave and arrangements virtually have been completed for Lascurain to be elected. It is reported the principal reason Huerta is ready to depart is that he wishes to save his family.

Effect on Mediation.

What effect tomorrow's election will have on the mediation plan to induce Constitutionalists to meet Huerta delegates in the conference over a provisional government is not known. The inference is given here that Lascurain, if elected, would agree to a provisional government provided Constitutionalist leaders predominated in its personnel. That would end the war in Mexico.

The success of this plan, it was said, would depend much on the outcome of the Torreon conference between representatives of Carranza and Villa over differences in the Constitutionalist ranks. Dr. Romulo Naon, minister from Argentina, and one of the mediators in the Mexican embroglio, who reached Washington today, said he expected to confer tomorrow with Carranza's Washington agents relative to the proposed conference between Constitutionalist

ANOTHER CASE OF BUBONIC PLAGUE

Second Death and Third Case at New Orleans

BLUE MAKES REPORT

Other Federal Health Officers Being Rushed to New Orleans to Aid in Extermination of Plague and Rats.

Washington, July 4.—Word from Surgeon General Blue, of the Public Health Service, to Acting Surgeon General Glennan, was received tonight that another suspected death from plague in New Orleans had been reported, making three cases and two deaths since the outbreak.

Additional measures were taken promptly by the public health service to cope with the situation which seems to have assumed a more serious aspect.

Assistant Surgeon General William Colby Rucker, who has had considerable experience in fighting plague, having been executive officer in the San Francisco campaign from 1907 to 1910 tonight was arranging to leave tomorrow morning for New Orleans to take charge of the work.

Assistant Surgeon Charles S. Williams is en route to the Louisiana metropolis, having left here last night. Past Assistant Surgeon French Simpson left New York this morning for New Orleans.

An assistant inspector and nine rat-catchers left San Francisco today and a foreman and two more rat-catchers will leave tomorrow for New Orleans.

New Orleans Denies Report.

New Orleans, July 4.—No new cases of bubonic plague have developed here during the past seven days and only one death has occurred to date. This statement was authorized tonight by Surgeon General Rubert Blue, of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, who is now in charge of the plague eradication work here.

Dr. Blue stated that reports made to Washington authorities of the death last Thursday of a negro boy probably had been misunderstood and hadogiven the impression that a second death had occurred here and a third case developed. The boy was found dead in a house three miles distant from the focus of infection.

Examination failed to reveal the presence of plague germs, but as a precaution the intestines were remov-

FOUR DEATHS FROM FATAL EXPLOSION

Scores of Persons Injured in New York City

BUILDING IS WRECKED

Industrial Workers of the World Credited With Damaging Explosion. Made for Use in Tarrytown at the Trial Monday.

New York, July 4.—Three men and a woman were killed today when a dynamite bomb, said to be the most powerful ever used in this city, was exploded in an apartment tenanted by Industrial Workers of the World. The upper part of the six-story tenement house in which the bomb was being made, was wrecked.

A score of persons were seriously injured and much property damage was done in a wide radius from the scene of the explosion. Those dead and those who escaped injury in the apartment included I. W. W. men who are defendants in the trial to be begun Monday in Tarrytown, N. Y., where they were arrested when they went to the village to make a demonstration outside the Pocantico hills estate of John D. Rockefeller.

As soon as one of the bodies of those killed in the explosion had been identified as that of Arthur Caron, one of the Tarrytown defendants, the police began an investigation.

Late today the police escorted from the office of Emma Goldman's publiiation, Mother Earth, to police headquarters, a group of agitators, including Marie Ganz, arrested some time ago for threatening to shoot John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Cross examination disclosed that all the eleven Tarrytown defendants out on bail, met here last night with Alexander Berkman, an anarchist, and others, to devise a way to aid the persons facing trial Monday. Present at this meeting, according to statements to the authorities were Carl Hansen, a member of the staff of Mother Earth, and Carl Berg, 24, a carpenter, a Tarrytown defendant.

Blown to Pieces.

Hansen was blown to pieces in the explosion. Berg is missing and is counted among the victims. The other persons known to have been killed was Mary Claves, 65 years old, a cigar-maker, who occupied an apartment adjoining the one in which the explosion occurred.

In support of the police theory that a bomb was being made for use in Tarrytown, a search of Caron's apartment disclosed two dry batteries, wired for use, a loaded revolver, cartridges and a partly constructed black-jack, together with a bowl of yellow substance thought to have been used in bomb construction.

Statements to the police indicated that the meetng last night ended about midnight.

Caron, Hansen, Berg and a fourth man, Mike Auspenti, who came here from Chicago about two weeks ago, left together and went to the apartments where the explosion occurred, at 1626 Lexington avenue.

Hansen's sister, Mrs. Louise Berger, who rented the top floor apartment, occupied by herself, Hansen and Caron, told the police the four men reached home at 1 o'clck.

There were no traces of an explosive or of the material for making any anywhere in the apartment, Miss Berger said. The explosion occurred at 9:20 o'clock A. M. and she was notified of it, she declared, while at the Mother Earth office.

Alexander Berkman said the group allied with him happened to be at the Mother Earth office when the police arrived because they had gathered to get on a Fourth of July picnic. Berkman denied he had counselled violence at the coming Tarrytown trials. He and others planned to go to Tarrytown, he said, and listen to the proceedings. He denied that he had written threatening letters to Tarrytown officials.

"You did send a telegram some time ago to the Judge at Tarrytown, demanding the release of the I. W. W. prisoners, didn't you?" asked Deputy Police Commissioner Rubin.

Sent the Telegrams.

"Yes. I sent a telegram containing resolutions condemning the arrest and brutal treatment of the men and women," replied Berkman.

The resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Ferrer group and I was instructed to forward them to the judge."

Berkman said he was unable to account for the presence of the explosive. He volunteered to produce himself and his followers at the coroner's inquest.

There were 35 apartments in the Lexington avenue building. All except two were occupied. The loss of life was not greater, according to the police, because so many of the dwellers had started off early to spend the holiday at various resorts. Of the many known to have been injured seven were removed to hospitals. Some of those who received minor hurts, were in buildings across the street. As far distant as two blocks, persons were thrown down by the shock.

The entire top of the southeast front of the building crashed into the street, tore a 30-foot hole in the sidewalk and partly filled a stretch of the new Lexington avenue subway excavation. Tomorrow a systematic examination will be made of the ruins in search of evidence that may support the police theory that the bomb was to be taken into the Tarrytown court room.

With Caron and Berg dead from the explosion, nine defendants remain to be tried at Tarrytown Monday.

CHARLOTTE TO LOSE N. C. MEDICAL COLLEGE

To Be Merged With Richmond Medical College

Lack of Clinical Facilities, Which Prevents Its Being Rated as Class B, Is the Reason—Fire Chief and Assistant Elected.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Charlotte, N. C., July 4.—Charlotte is to lose the North Carolina Medical College, according to plans that are almost completed for merging it with the Richmond Medical College at Richmond, Va. The lack of clinical facilities, which prevents its being rated as a class B institution, is the reason for the move. Most States of the Union now will not recognize the diploma of a class C medical college graduate, it is said, and it was deemed best, since the hospital facilities of Charlotte, of a public or private nature preclude the possibility of the establishment of a 100-bed hospital here for the college, to merge it with the Virginia institution.

Students enrolled now in the North Carolina Medical College will attend the Richmond institution next year, and will be credited with work done at the college here, and will be rated not lower than from a class B institution. The college was moved here from Davidson College in 1906 by 12 men, all Charlotte physicians, except the present president, Dr. J. P. Monroe, composing a stock company. It has history dating from about 1896.

New Fire Chief.

The city executive board yesterday afternoon elected J. H. Wentz, assistant chief of the Charlotte fire department, to the position of chief to succeed J. H. Wallace, who was killed in the tragic explosion here last Wednesday. A. E. Moody was elected assistant chief to succeed Glenn as assistant. Both men have been members of the department for a number of years and both are regarded as very able and efficient men for their positions. The members of the fire department balloted among themselves to decide who would be chief and assistant chief. The vote for Wentz as chief was unanimous and for Moody as assistant chief was practically so. The executive board having agreed not to go out of the ranks for a new chief and assistant, ratified the expressed wish of the firemen.

A committee of the board has been appointed to draft suitable resolutions bearing on the death of Chief Wallace and Captain Glenn who perished in the explosion while in performance of duty.

WILSON MEASURES ARE DEFENDED BY DANIELS

Will Unfetter American Business Says Secretary

Secretary of the Navy Makes Address at Charlotteville, Virginia—Era of Unprecedented Prosperity Possible.

Charlottesville, Va., July 4.—The administration's tariff, currency and anti-trust measures are the three declarations of independence that will unfetter American business life, and make possible an era of unprecedentedprosperity, Secretary of the Navy Daniels declared in an Independence Day address here today. The Secretary, speaking before the University of Virginia summer school, said Congress had listened to the people's mandate and the writing of the three declarations had been the concrete result.

"When Congress began writing its Declaration of Independence against unjust tariff taxation of the many for the benefit of the favored few, and its declaration against the money trust, there was a lion in the path," the Secretary said. "That lion was a pernicious and invisible lobby. Before any reforms could be accomplished, before any pledge could be kept, the lobby had to be destroyed. Woodrow Wilson has done nothing that will free legislative bodies from the miasma that affects them equal to his victory over the lobby. That fight not only destroyed the evil of the lobby, but ended the ability of selfish interests to prevent the enactment of other declarations of independence."

The Original Progressive.

Characterizating Thomas Jefferson as the "original progressive" Secretary Daniels said President Wilson, with the exception of Madison and Monroe, was more like Jefferson than any other man who had occupied the White House.

Jefferson, the Secretary said, was well known as the Father of the University of Virginia, and if he had no other title to fame his conception of what a State University should be and his carrying it out in the university he founded, would give him a title that could not be invalidated."

"Virginia delayed long in establishing a system of education upon Jefferson's ideals,' said the Secretary, "and he deemed that due quite as much to the fact that population in Virginia was widely scattered as to the fact that large numbers of influential leaders did not have the vision to see that the prosperity of the whole people was

LIGHTWEIGHT JOE RIVERS DEFEATED MATTY McCUE.

Rivers Knocked McCue Down With First Lick in Second Round.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—Joe Rivers, the Los Angeles lightweight, defeated Matty McCue, of Racine, Wis., substitute for Ad Wolgast, in the second round of their fight at Vernon, Arena today. Rivers knocked McCue down in the first round. In the second a blow to the jaw sent McCue to the floor again and while the referee counted, McCue's seconds threw a towel into the ring in token of defeat.

McCue apparently was awed. He did little except try to cover up while Rivers easily broke his weak defense. When his manager threw a sponge into the ring McCue cried: "He did not knock me out! He did not knock me out!"

The men entered the ring at catch weights, with Rivers the heavier by two or three pounds.

McCue was a training partner of Ad Wolgast, whose broken arm prevented his meeting Rivers.

WILSON PEOPLE WANT PLAYGROUND FOR CHILDREN.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., July 4.—Considerable interest has been awakened in the "playground for children" and particularly during the recent Chautauqua week. The delivery of a series of lectures by Mrs. Yarnall, platform superintendent of the Chautauqua, and the climax—the lecture of Judge Ben J. Lindsey—stirred the people on the subject. Plans are being formulated for the perfection of an organization the chief end being the community playground. One of the progressive men states that he will head the list with a contribution of $1,000, others will follow.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER WON 300 MILE RACE.

Captured $10,000 of the $25,000 Prize for Sioux City Races.

Sioux City, Ia., July 4.—Traveling at the rate of 78 miles an hour Eddie Rickenbacker won the 300-mile automobile race here today and captured $10,000 of the $25,000 prize. His time was 3:49.02. Spencer Wishart finished three and a half laps behind Rickenbacher. Ralph Mulford, whose car was disabled in the 75th lap, took the place of his team-mate, Thomas Alley, when Alley was burned by a gasoline explosion at the pits and finished third after a close race with Anderson, who landed in fourth place.

THEATRICAL

"The Mask of Affliction," a mammoth two-reel Eclair dramatic masterpiece, heads tomorrow's bill at the Bijou and marks the inauguration of another big week, a full programme of which appears elsewhere in this paper today. Many notable features are billed for the coming week, including Our Mutual Girl, Lucile Love, and the Adventures of Pauline. Another notable offering will be on Tuesday, in "The Silent Witness," a mammoth picture featuring J. Warren Kerrigan, a descriptive article of which appeared in The Star last Sunday.

"The Mask of Affliction," heading tomorrow's bill, is a mammoth two-reel offering, a mining story of intense pathos, and exceedingly dramatic, with some of the strongest climaxes seen recently in a motion picture play. It is produced by the Eclair All-Feature Players, who do not release any of the ordinary run of cheap pictures, and this alone is a guarantee of its worth, to anyone familiar with these pictures.

A big Joker comedy, "A Quiet Day at Murphy's", follows. While the title is rather pacific in meaning, the film reels with the startling, biffety-bang of explosive farce, and is a wonder. Watch the paper every day for this week's big offers, but turn to another page and clip the big ad containing the full program right now and keep it for future reference. There are several releases this week which you do not want to miss.

The Week at the Grand.

Another great week, one fraught with the best in moving pictures and bristling with other swell features, is just ahead of the folks of Wilmington, being found in the superb menu the popular Grand Theatre has prepared for each day the present week, opening tomorrow.

Besides the film bill each day, Miss Framan, the brilliant Wurlitzer virtuoso, who has made a great hit with the Wilmington folks, will perform, and the charming young lady has arranged a special programme for Tuesday, though each day she will offer something superb.

Tomorrow's great show will be headed by Edison's great two-part film, "His Sob Story," and it is a stirring dramatic. It is the story of John, who, down on his luck, goes to New York to make his fortune. A notable cast appears, including Ben Wilson, Harry Beaumont and Edna Hamel.

"The Girl and the Gondolier," is a Big Kalem offering for tomorrow, and it is merrily picturesque. It possesses both mirth and romance and some of the most popular artists of the "movies" will appear, including Bennett Moulter, Victor Rottman, Ruth Roland and John E. Brennan.

Another big chuckle film on tomorrow is "A Darktown Wooing", which is one of the cleverest and swellest of all hits. The latest edition of the Hearst-Selig Pictorial Weekly will also be flashed on the big Grand screen tomorrow.

Good Game At Sunset Park

PICKED TEAM FROM THE CITY LEAGUE DOWNED A TEAM FROM INDEPENDENTS.

A number of loyal fans saw one of the best games of the season at Sunset Park yesterday morning, when the picked team from the Independent League went down in defeat at the hands of the picked team from the City League, to the tune of four to one.

The game was hard fought and the plucky Independents held the married men down to one run until the ninth inning, when the benedicts scored three runs on a batting rally. Carr, McIntyre and Shannon pulled off two lightning double plays that featured the game. Holt pitched one of his best games, striking out a half dozen batsmen and allowing only six hits, well scattered.

N. C. BOY STARRING.

Bob Covington, of Laurinburg, Is A Twirling Wonder.

The following is from this week's issue of Sporting Life:

"Charlotte, N. C., June 27.—Bob Covington, the 17-year-old Laurinburg amateur who has been offered several chances to pitch for teams in the North Carolina League, yesterday in his home town struck out 21 batsmen of the McColl, S. C., team, allowed no hits and won his game 2 to 0. Covington's reason for declining to play professional ball is that he intends to enter college and does not want to be barred from the inter-collegiate athletics. Last year he won 16 straight games."

Efforts are being made by a Wilmington gentleman who is a close friend of Charlie Dooin, to have Covington try out with the Phillies the latter part of this season, and he will probably go to Philadelphia early in September for this purpose.

Covington pitched a game against Raeford last week, thirteen innings, allowing the opposition only four hits.

SHAMROCK IV

Red McGhee says:

Well, Uncle Sam, he's on your trail, this English geck who's bugs on sail—Sir Tom, the ol' tea king. His Shamrock IV has stood the test an' stacks up better than the rest, to hear the Johnnies sing. We've beat those guys so much before they're out this time for scalps an' gore an' that ol' yachtin' cup. Tom's itchin' for the role of crook, an' when he's lamped off Sandy Hook he'll have his dander up.

Those Johnny guys have come awake across that great big salty lake. This year is theirs, they claim. They whaled us on the links, y'know; we didn't have a measly show at that ol' walkin' game. This challenger we gotta meet since she's been launched is raced an' beat the fastest English boats. You take a little tip from me, the talk they're pushin' 'cross the sea would get a flock o' goats.

I'm not scared, Sam y'understand—this yeller stuff ain't just my brand—but I can smell a fight. An' that's what Tom'll put across. He ain't a-plannin' on a loss—not by a gol durn sight. If we're to beat this new Shamrock we gotta put the past in hock an' not sail on our rep. This cup ain't ours just on our face—we gotta get out there an' RACE an' cut loose all our pep.

LUMBERTON NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE WEEK

Robeson County Pre-Primary Campaign Has Opened.

Mr. R. D. Caldwell Declines to Run for State Senate, Leaving Clear Field for McLeod—Court Tuesday.

(Special Star Correspondence)

Lumberton, N. C., July 4.—The Robeson county campaign of 1914 can be said to have opened in East Lumberton Thursday night, when several candidates availed themselves of the opportunity of telling the "dear people" that their support would be appreciated. Clerk of the Court C. B. Skipper, who stands for re-election and so far has no opposition, led off. Sheriff Lewis has no opposition to his re-election, and he did not have to make a speech either. Mr. M. G. McKenzie, the present treasurer, and one of his oppenents, Mr. Edgar Nance, both told the people they would like to be treasurer. There are four candidates for register of deeds, but only three, Messrs. M. W. Floyd, L. B. Townsend and Hugh M. White, were present. When they got through speaking all present were satisfied that all three were candidates.

J. Ed. Tyson and E. M. Britt convinced those present that they each wanted to be recorder. Woodbury Lennon, present prosecutor in recorder's court, was present, and made it clear that he would like to continue to fill that office. State Senator Geo. B. McLeod was present and entertained the crowd for some time. He is a candidate for re-election and the writer hears of no opposition. At the meeting, there were, it is said, 150 to 200 voters, and everybody in good humor, everything passing off quietly and pleasantly.

Caldwell Won't Run.

For some time there has been talk of Mr. R. D. Caldwell being a candidate for the State senatorship, but in the last issue of the Robesonian he makes it plain that he can not comply with the wishes of many friends in that respect. Mr. Caldwell is one of the writer's best lifelong personal friends, and we can but congratulate him on his decision.

He will help more people and do his friends more good at home.

Several days ago your correspondent took a trip into the country, which was a revelation to him. He struck into a section where he saw and heard more birds of various kinds than he had seen before in years. The woods seemed alive with quail, blue birds, yellow hammers, and jay birds. In some sections there are large numbers of birds, but one thing certain—"Posted—Keep off."

The Seaboard is advertising a big excursion to run from Clarkton to Norfolk on July 14. Two whole days and a night will be spent in Norfolk. Fare for the round trip from Lumberton is only $4.50. There will be separate coaches for white and colored. Arrangements are being made for an excursion to run from Wilmington to Norfolk on August 3rd.

"Spare the Beautiful Oaks."

Your correspondent is one individual who believes in standing by the town officials, but they have passed one order which he trusts they will yet see fit to reconsider, and that is the paving of Sixth street between Elm and Chestnut. If anyone thinks trees will live long after paving has been put down, let them take a look at the corner trees of Sixth and Elm streets. Spare the beautiful oaks on Sixth street.

A colored excursion is booked to run from Marion, S. C., to Lumberton next Wednesday. This will be the third colored excursion from Marion to this place this season, and every one of them seems to have been a success in every way.

Next Monday is the time for convening a two-weeks term of criminal court, but Judge Cooke has notified Clerk Skipper that he can't reach here until Monday night and there will therefore be no court until Tuesday morning. Then it will be a small affair, there being only five or six prisoners in jail.

Some Figures.

Somebody get a pain. They are endeavoring to show what different counties pay their officers, and put Wake county down at $2,750 for the sheriff. There they stop on Wake instead of telling it all. Looks like—we don't say it, no—that some one would fool the people of Robeson. Here is what Raleigh and Raleigh township pay: Sheriff, $2,750; one office deputy, $1,500; two office deputies, $1,000 each; one deputy, $720, making a total of $6,970. There are 18 townships in Wake county outside of Raleigh township and in each township is a deputy who collects the taxes for 2 1-2 per cent whether paid to him or into the office. Then they get half fees for serving all papers. The sheriff of Robeson gets $4,800, but is allowed no deputy or office man and has to collect the taxes from more than 20 townships. We have these figures from an official source. Tell the whole thing or leave it off.

Messrs. McIntyre & Lawrence have had work begun on two brick stores on their vacant lot next to Messrs. Blacker Bros. on Chestnut street between Fourth and Fifth.

Minor Matters.

Dr. Dan F. McNeill is offering his livery business for sale. It is not announced what his plans are for the future.

Mr. W. J. Dubois, proprietor of the Lumberton Bakery, has placed an order for an up-to-date delivery wagon which is expected to arrive in a few days.

Miss Mary Redmond arrived from McRae, Ga., last night to spend some time with relatives.

Mr. B. H. Harris, of Wilmington, arrived this morning to spend the Fourth with friends here.

Capt. Frank Lany, conductor on the G. C. & N. division of the Seaboard, spent Thursday in town fishing. He was accompanied by his little son.

Mr. S. R. Spivey has taken a position as salesman with Mr. A. Weinstein, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. James Shelby, who left for Virginia. W. S. W.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 4.—The movement of the Third Regiment, North Carolina National Guard, for the annual encampment at Camp Glenn, Morehead, begins Monday, the encampment to continue to July 16th. For the encampment Col. J. N. Craig, of Reidsville, will be in command and the principal members of his staff are Lieut. Col. S. W. Minor, Durham, and Majors C. L. McGehee, Franklinton; J. J. Bernard and R. M. Allbright, Raleigh. Later in the week there will be a review of the troops by Governor Craig and staff and the military ball and other social features.

Six Gamblers Fined.

The six men who were indicted for gambling in connection with the gambling escapade that led to the killing of Cleve Watkins by Will Mays early last Sunday morning, were in the police court yesterday morning and submitted their cases, Police Justice W. C. Harris letting them off with the payment of $25 and costs each. Nothing has ever been heard of Mays, who did the killing. Southern Railway Section Master Martin, who was arrested on the charge of aiding Mays in making his "get-away" by driving him across country to Barnes' Crossing, has not been tried yet. He has given $500 bond. He will undertake to prove that he had no idea he was helping a fugitive to escape arrest when he rendered the service to Mays.

Postmasters' Convention.

Postmaster Willis G. Briggs, of the Raleigh postoffice, who is secretary of the North Carolina Association of Postmasters, announces that the association will, along with the Virginia association, go to Washington this year for the annual convention which was held jointly last year at Norfolk. The dates for the Washington, D. C., meeting are October 5-7, and they go there on the special invitation of the officials of the Postoffice Department. There is also an effort to have the South Carolina and the Maryland postmasters meet at the same time in Washington, which would make a most formidable gathering. There are 143 Presidential postmasters members of the association in this State. In addition there is a fourth class office section of the organization. Postmaster H. McL. Green, of Wilmington, is the president of the North Carolina association.

Arrested by Federal Authorities.

Max Bane, of this city, has been arrested by the Federal authorities and will be given a hearing Monday before United States Commissioner John Nichols on the charge of violating the United States pure food law in that he took some meat that had been condemned on the Durham market and shipped it to Richmond to sell it. The warrant was sworn out by United States District Attorney Francis D. Winston, of the eastern district of North Carolina.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS.

Notice—All members of the Cape Fear Lodge No. 2, Orion Lodge No. 67, Wilmington Lodge No. 139, Hanover Lodge No. 145, and Letitia Lodge No. 3, Daughters of Rebekah, are requested to be present at Odd Fellow's Hall Tuesday night, July 7th, at 8 o'clock, on account of Joint Public Installation of Officers of their respective lodges by the Grand Master.

By order of the Chairman of the Joint Committee.

SHAMEFUL AND INHUMAN PRACTICE DISCOVERED

Infants Being Shipped to Irresponsible People.

Wilson Astounded to Find Weakly Babe Sent Without Investigation From Richmond to Pauper Family.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., July 4.—Down on Jones street, in the mill section, in a two-room house, lies a two months' old infant, weakly and ill, and pitiful. The baby was sent here without proper investigation by an institution which proclaims itself, according to its printed letter head—"Virginia Home for Infants, Inc." and is located in Richmond at 100 West Clay street. The letter head gives no name of individuals and no further information except the telephone number—"Madison 7683."

This little babe came to the attention of the Associated charities when a physician called to the house and discovered the conditions.

Mrs. George W. Stanton, acting president of the Wilson Associated Charities, has gone to the bottom of the matter and has secured the facts concerning a practice which to Wilson people seems absolutely shameful and inhuman. Local authorities have not yet decided what legal steps can be taken to stop the practice but are determined that something shall be done and possibly publicity given the facts may accomplish some good.

Down in the cotton mill section of the town lives a widow with three daughters. They live in a two-room house and are extremely poor and illiterate. In addition there is little likelihood of the family being able to make expenses a larger part of the time and they are watched over by the secretary of the Associated Charities. The family has lived in and about Wilson for a number of years and are certainly unfit in every sense to adopt and rear a child.

Several weeks ago one of the daughters, so the story goes, heard that babies were to be had in Richmond for the asking and commenced to urge the mother, who works at day labor, to take the steps to secure a child as a plaything.

Nearby lives a family, one of the better families of the section, recently come to Wilson from Lumaca. This family had secured a baby from the Virginia institution—in April of this year. To them the other family applied for information and an application was sent for a baby. The letter which came in reply also offers "babies to others" and encloses blank applications to be signed. The infant was brought to Wilson Saturday, June 20, and delivered to the Jones street people at the station here and no personal investigation was made. It is reported that the application was signed by three individuals, one a Wilson druggist and another a Wilson justice of the peace, neither of whom made any investigation but signed the paper by request. The third signer was a self-styled minister, who works in the mill and lives in the community. He has no official connection with any of the religious denominations of the community but is understood to be a quiet, unoffending man.

Workers from the charitable institutions of the town were astounded when the facts became known and especially in view of the intimate knowledge they had of conditions in the Jones street house. "No baby has any business being brought up in such conditions," said Mrs. Stanton this morning. "It may be that nothing can be done now to save this child but something should be done to stop the practice of shipping infants here to irresponsible people."

AGED EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH, BOWED IN SORROW OVER TRAGEDY, MAY NOT LIVE

Vienna, July 4.—The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife has been a hard blow to Emperor Francis Joseph. This vigorous old ruler faces this new tragedy in his life with bowed head and saddened heart. It is not expected that he will survive long. His life has been one of family trials and sorrows, and this new tragedy, coming in the sunset of his career, has left him weakened and alone.

For Beautiful Hair, Nourish the Scalp

Dandruff must be removed and the hair roots nourished to stop falling hair and itching scalp. It is unnecessary to have thin, brittle, matted stringy or faded hair. No matter how unsightly the hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, Parisian Sage rubbed into the scalp is all that is ever needed. The hair roots are nourished and stimulated to grow new hair, even all dandruff is removed with one application, and itching scalp and falling hair cease; the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life and beauty.

Parisian Sage, a daintly perfumed liquid, is one of the most pleasant, invigorating and refreshing hair tonics known, yet perfectly harmless and inexpensive. After the first application you will be surprised and delighted with Parisian Sage, for there is nothing that will so help to double your present attractiveness as luxuriant, glorious hair, and this tonic treatment is all that can possibly be desired.

Be sure to get Parisian Sage from R. R. Bellamy, or at any drug or toilet counter, as there is no other so effective.

IT'S A MISTAKE

Made by Many Wilmington Residents

Many people in a misguided effort to get rid of kidney backache, rely on plasters, liniments and other makeshifts. The right treatment is kidney treatment and a remarkably recommended kidney medicine is Doan's Kidney Pills. Wilmington is no exception.

The proof is at your very door. The following is an experience typical of the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Wilmington.

A. W. Wilson, 402 South Fifth St., Wilmington N. C., says: "I had lumbago and lameness in my loins and plasters and liniments didn't help me much. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills, that I finally got a box at Bellamy's Drug Store and began using them. They cured me and the aches and pains were removed. I shall never fail to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills when I have an opportunity."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Wilson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. George Wampum Perkins may not stand on the Progressive platform but he will be considered in full standing just so long as he stands at Armageddon and lets his leg be pulled.

If anarchists wish to get any notoriety out of having a trial, they should stay away from the South and not take any chances on getting "just retribution," as the headliner would have it.

On account of a great deal of seemingly unnecessary noise during a political campaign, it should be stated that those who are running side shows have to make most all the noise in order to catch some people whose attention can be taken away from the big show.

Little Joe Brown is again running for the United States Senate in Georgia. For some reason or other Senator Hoke Smith has given him a great deal of dissatisfaction and he thinks it is about time for Georgia to insist on being represented to the best advantage in the Senate.

Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson having introduced the bill for national prohibition, is informed by the Jacksonville Times-Union that "kissing has caused more murders than alcohol." At the same time, getting murdered on account of alcohol is the poorest way of the two.

They are now discussing whether the moving picture kiss is objectionable. As a long distance imitation, it is too cold a proposition to be considered. At the same time, those who play the part for the movies are artists who follow the line of least resistence in accordance with the general rule.

Per capita circulation is explained by the statement that if all the money in the world were divided equally, each adult would get $30. Of course, married ladies would get their $30, but if the old man would bring his home in a lump he wouldn't have it but about a minute on account of his being nice and late and agreeable.

The fall shades of dress goods have been announced. The materials are numerous and each has several tones. We leave it to the fashion magazines to announce them. Of course, everything is going to be pretty for there never was a time that new things were not beautiful and attractive. Those who cannot admire the styles now are reactionaries.

Georgia goes right ahead giving evidence that she is one of the most progressive and desirable States of the South. Before wasting time on anything else her Legislature endorsed the administration of President Wilson. That confirms the claim that Georgia has one of the most representative Legislatures that ever assembled in Atlanta. In order to find out where Atlanta is, find Hoke Smith and little Joe Brown.

BORROWING MONEY ON LAND.

Borrowing money on land is a costly proposition under the present lack of title registration in most every State in the South, indeed, if that is not true of every one of them. When a land owner goes to get a loan on his land as security he finds that out. The titles have to be examined in order to make sure that the security is good and a mortgage on the land has to be prepared before the loan can be had. For the title examination and drawing of the mortgage a lawyer has to be paid, and a fee for recording the mortgage has to be paid to the register of deeds, the probate judge, or whatever kind of registration official the various States have.

A farmer who borrows money has all that expense to foot on a small or a large loan, in addition to the rate of interest and perhaps a commission to the party who secures the loan. Lawyers and money brokers cannot be expected to work for nothing, and it is no fault of theirs but it is the fault of a State which has a primitive land registration system, emphasis being laid on system because it isn't any system at all. This and other behind-the-time things have to be remedied before any State can be called progressive. We ought to make material, civic and administrative progress before we can bother with so-called progressive ideas in politics. Of course, we ought to adopt all the progressive political ideas that are necessary for our happiness and good, but poor government administered by a reactionary, or a mossback, or a progressive is just the same as if the system under which he administers the people's affairs is the same. Neither can drive a nail any better than the other if the nail has to be driven with the same old piece of board.

The new reserve banking system which goes into effect in about three weeks, the date being set for August 1st, is emphasizing the backwardness of our States in the matter of land registration and the probability is that it also will serve to show how far behind the whole country has been in its banking and financial system, and possibly in other matters. The reserve banking law provides for rural credits, which is another way of saying that it provides a way for a farmer or landowner to borrow money on his land. The law offers a new opportunity under conditions, but the land registration custom of our State makes the conditions impossible.

When parties loan money it is natural for them to want good security. All they are after is to be sure to get their interest and their money back when the time for the loan expires. The primary and indispensable prerequisite to securing loans from a land bank is absolute perfection of title, and there is where the land owner falls down because his State has an obsolete system of title registration. Therefore, the farmer has to pay as much costs in getting his "papers fixed up" in borrowing money from a land shark as he does when he gets a loan from any private individual.

For that reason, the Atlanta Constitution has called attention to the fact that as great a State as Georgia "will be barred from participation in the benefit of Federal rural credits unless the State reforms her impossible land titles and foreclosure laws." Would you think that such a State as Georgia would be so far behind the times as that? It is true, however, for the Constitution vouches for the statement that the present title and mortgage system in that State is so obsolete that Georgia farmers "generally pay from 1 to 2 per cent higher interest and almost twice as much in commissions and attorneys' fees and expense of abstracting as their fellows elsewhere because of the State's uncertain and insecure land title and foreclosure laws."

That certainly is to the discredit of Georgia and it does not afford any comfort to know that North Carolina and other States are in the same drifting boat with her. North Carolina has made a pass at reform along that line, but, as usual, when a loaf is wanted in such reform matters, the average Southern legislature hands out a half loaf and lets it go at that.

The Georgia paper, backed by the farmers of Georgia, is calling on the legislature now in session to act in this matter at once and take Georgia from the list of States that are about a hundred years behind the progress of some of the States.

SAVANNAH BENEFITS FROM PANAMA CANAL.

Southward commerce takes its flight—that is commerce from a large commercial area of the South Atlantic and possibly States of the Middle West. It is settled that Charleston is to have a coaling station to be served by the Clinchfield interests, and, judging from the pictures of the terminals to be installed, published in The News and Courier a few days ago, the coal terminals will be among the most modern and best equipped in this country. That will go a long way towards increasing the commercial importance of Charleston.

However, Charleston's close neighbor, Savannah, will contest with her for the commercial premiership of the South Atlantic. It seems that while other ports are getting theirs in some form or other, the Georgia port is getting hers in the absolute prerequisite for moving water freights. That is regular steamship service with the trade countries to be reached by way of the Panama Canal. The Star long ago mentioned the report that the South Atlantic, Gulf & Orient Line will use the port of Savannah, and now comes confirmation through the Savannah Morning News that the line will make that ocean gateway a port of call on the route through the canal to Japan, China, Manchuria and other Oriental trade centers. The vessels of the line will give Savannah a call every two weeks, and there will be fortnightly sailings from that port by way of the canal.

The schedule, says The News, will become effective as soon as the Panama Canal shall have been opened to commercial shipping, which will be in the next few months. Our esteemed Savannah contemporary says it will put that city on the map, and it lays great store by the plans to move through that port the cotton manufactures of the mills of Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Alabama.

That sounds good—for Savannah. We have often pointed to the fact that the canal would offer the opportunity if our ports would keep a lookout for them, and we were confident that there would be something doing by the time traffic would begin to move through the new route. However, we will not begin to realize how many and how great are the opportunities till they bump right up against us.

The ships of the South Atlantic, Gulf & Orient Line already have taken out part cargoes from Savannah, and it was only a few months ago that one of its vessels came to Wilmington to get cotton for Japan.

PROHIBITION IN THE NAVY.

Alcoholic beverages of all kinds are now "contraband" in the navy, the famous prohibition order of Secretary of the Navy Daniels having gone into effect last Wednesday. When notice was first made that the mammoth battleships of Uncle Sam would become colossal water wagons after July 1 of this year, a great howl was raised by many officers. They declared that the most sacred traditions of the navy, from time immemorial the most aristocratic of all of Uncle Sam's various departments of activity, had been violated.

To think that a former North Carolina editor would have the temerity to upset these traditions was more than some could believe. However, the officers soon learned that Mr. Daniels meant exactly what he said and that he was possessed of abundant grit and backbone. Realizing that they were up against a stone wall, so to speak, they have yielded gracefully and without protest. In fact, it is stated in dispatches from Vera Cruz that lavish wardroom hospitality had nearly put the demon rum on his last legs before the time limit.

The attitude of the officers seems to be that whatever may be the traditions of alcoholic conviviality, all traditions of the American navy call for loyal, unquestioned obedience of orders, and all wine, beer and liquors will be jettisoned. Contrary to popular expectation there were no submarine high jinks this week for the stock of wet goods on board the battleships had been gradually depleted.

Grape juice is now the order of the day, not only on the Chautauqua circuit but in the army and navy as well. The prohibition in the navy is much more stringent than in the army, for in the latter the officers are still allowed to serve wines and liquors occasionally. The officers of the navy will still be permitted to carry a "little" to be used in the entertainment of foreign officers, but the rule for Americans is "strict, absolute prohibition."

NEEDS OF NEWSPAPER MEN

Every sane man knows that the newspapers of this country possess a tremendous power for good or bad. That President Price, of the Kansas University, in an address in Kansas City the other day should have declared that education of newspaper and magazine writers in the teachings of Christ is one of the first tasks before the church people today, is worthy of no special notice, however, for everyone realizes that this is the primary and sole aim of the church regarding any profession.

It is doubtless true that newspaper men need to have their attention brought more forcibly to the great truths taught by the great Teacher, but it is no more true of them than it is of any other class of citizens. The tendency today is to emphasize the teachings of Christ more strongly than has been the case in the past, especially as they touch the common everyday affairs of men. In the past it has been the policy to leave this work largely to the churches themselves, but the times have changed and are changing.

Today religion and morals are recognized as vital matters touching the lives of all. The business man today realizes his opportunities for service as never before and is striving to improve them. That is true of every profession.

The newspapers and magazines have ever been in the vanguard of progress, if the people are progressing. Their position enables those in charge to quickly sound public sentiment and to know which way the tide is going. It is a great responsibility and no newspaper that would survive can fail to be true to the best and highest interest of its readers.

CURRENT COMMENT.

It appears that the editors in session at Wrightsville forgot to take up the matter of more adequate prohibition laws.—Asheville Citizen.

The Wilmington Star says "the editors had ample chance to grasp the waterways situation." What was the matter? Were there no other situations except the waterways, or is this just a charitable way of expressing it?—Durham Sun.

Quoting from the Wilmington Star: "The majority of the State committee for a new primary was small, but it commits the committee to the primary idea. Indeed, the logic of the situation showed that nothing but a primary could be the means of giving both candidates a fair chance. It is a victory for the ballot primary principle and it will emphasize the necessity for a State-wide legalized primary system for the nomination of all officers." And that is as it should be—and the law must be a plain and simple one in construction, with no abstruse paragraphs that will cause trouble and contention, and with the second choice provision either eliminated or made plain for the canvassers.—Whiteville News-Leader.

Sometime ago The Journal observed that the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad probably was not joining very heartily in the fight to have the Inter-State Commerce Commission allow a horizontal increase of 5 per cent. in freight rates, the remark being based upon the fact that the Coast Line seemed to be enjoying exceptional prosperity. The report of income and expenses of the road for the month of May of this year, as compared with the same month of 1913, confirms our original belief. The operating revenue of the road for May of this year was $131,809.84 greater than for the same month of last year, and this despite an increase of operating expenses for that month this year amounting to $113,207.90 over May, 1913. The operating revenues of the Coast Line for the period embraced between July, 1913, and May 31, 1914, amounted to $468,007.65 more than for the same period of the preceding fiscal year. This indicates genuine prosperity, not only of the Coast Line, but of the section through which it runs. Recently we called attention to the fact that the Seaboard Air Line was showing a substantial increase in earnings this year as compared with last. Also we commented upon the fact that the Norfolk & Western at the end of March of this year had net profits sufficient to meet all its interest and dividend obligations for the entire year, leaving the earnings for April, May and June clear "velvet" to be divided in large part among the holders of the common stock. It was estimated that the road would earn a dividend of 8.1 per cent. on the common stock of this year.—Richmond Journal.

WILMINGTON.

Fair in its summer glory,
Wilmington lies by the sea;
Nature has tenderly proven
That it's blest by the "powers that be."

Great trees shade the streets with their coolness,
Sycamore, locust and oak,
And oft to the heart-weary traveler
Those branches a welcome has spoke.

The birds trill their songs in the branches
That "peace and good will" here abide,
And the stranger feels joy in the greeting
That meets him on every side.

Many flowers lend tone to the picture,
"Bringing memories of our dear old home,"
And the crepe myrtle, waving in beauty,
Greets the glad eye where'er it may roam.

And the church bells ring out o'er the city,
Proclaiming God's word in their call.
An church spires reared high o'er the tree tops
Send a welcoming beckon to all.

The ocean breeze fans you at midday,
As soft in the brow it does play;
A sweet, tender peace fills this city—
I could rest here contented alway.

MARGARET LEGGETT.

ANOTHER GOOD MAN GONE.

On the morning of the 26th June, 1914, at 1:15 o'clock, Mr. W. A. Moore, better and more familiarly known as Adrian, departed this life at his home near Southport, N. C. He was born at Atkinson, Pender county, September 9th, 1853, and was a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families in that county.

He was married to Miss Sallie McRacken, daughter of Mr. Wm. McRacken, November 5th, 1879, and from this union there are seven children: Mrs. C. O. Alexander, Miss Edna, Messrs. Joel and Claude, of Southport; J. A. and Eugene, of Norfolk, Va., and A. W. Moore, of Maryland.

He is survived also by two sisters: Mrs. Nathan O. Berry, of Goldsboro, and Mrs. A. L. Hubbard, of Fayetteville, and two brothers: George J. Moore, of Atkinson, and Colen Moore, of Goldsboro, N. C., and a true and faithful wife.

It was the pleasure of the writer to visit Mr. Moore many times during his severe illness when in the hospital, and in his home, and he has never seen a fuller manifestation of the unswerving love and faithfulness than was shown by the wife and children, and especially the wife, who never tired, never gave up, but stood by him day and night, until the end came.

Soon after his marriage, he settled near Southport, and engaged in farming, and made a complete success, becoming one of the most well known, prominent and influential planters in the County of Brunswick; his advice in that line was often sought, which he cheerfully gave, for he was a man who loved to help others; for there never lived one in whose heart there was more kind sentiment and good feeling for his neighbor, even from his boyhood and his ears were ever open to the cries of the poor and needy, and he often bestowed charity, where none knew it, save he and his good wife. He was a man of high sense of honor and integrity, ever dispensing the same to all, and asking nothing but that of them.

He was a member of the Methodist church of Southport for 29 years, and lived a consistent Christian life, never failing to attend the services of the sanctuary when physically able, and always gave cheerfully to the support of his pastor and the various objects connected with his church and very often did his liberality reach out to others, and he gave to other denominations.

He had been a very strong man until within two years of his death, when God laid his hand of affliction on him, and confined him to his room and bed, where he suffered intense agony a good part of that time, but he never murmured or complained against the providences of the God he loved and served, but bore it patiently and enduringly to the end, ever saying to his loved ones and friends around him the grace of God is with me, and when this transitory scene is over, I shall go to my Maker, giving full evidence to us whom he has left behind of the power in grace and prayer, and let us emulate his example, and have an assurance, as he did, of a blessed immortality beyond the grave.

Finally, the Angels came to his bedside and said as it were: Wrecked form, thou shalt soon return to thy mother earth, there to remain until the general resurrection, and he calmly and sweetly passed away, and the Angels transported his spirit through the gates of glory, and he is now walking the streets of the New Jerusalem, and is with his loved ones who preceded him to eternity, and together they are helping the Angel Choir chant praises to Him who liveth and reigneth forever, for redeeming love and saving grace.

They are now waiting and watching for us on the other shore, and let us be faithful to his God and our God, where there will be no more pain, no more sorrow and parting, but where it is all rest, sweet rest, joy, all joy.

A FRIEND.

LOSES HIS LIFE IN WATERS OF ATLANTIC

Mr. George Scarrett, of Atlanta, Drowned at Beach

Fell Overboard From Launch on Outer Reef at Moore's Inlet—Companions Were Rescued From Swamped oBat.

Headed back to the beach yesterday morning at 9 o'clock from a fishing trip on the "outside," Mr. George Scarrett, of Atlanta, Ga., member of a party out in Capt. A. L. Butt's motor launch, the Carolina, lost his balance when a great wave tossed the boat into the air on the outer reef of Moore's Inlet, plunged overboard, and, apparently helpless despite his ability to swim, drifted away on the ebbing tide for several hundred yards before sinking to his death in the quieter and deeper water beyond the bar. A coiled line, flung from the launch Suzanne, which attempted a rescue, fell fairly on his breast as he floated quietly on his back, and slowly uncoiled as the passing boat plunged through the giant combers breaking on the reef, but the doomed man, to all appearances, had not strength enough left to lift his hands to the rope that would have saved him, only his eyes, following the boat in a look of hopeless resignation, giving evidence that life yet stirred within his breast.

Capt. A. L. Butt, master of the Carolina; Mr. J. C. Herring, a local contractor, and Mr. Abner Wooten, of Wilson, N. C., the other members of the party, in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue their companion, anchored the Carolina fairly on the sand ribs of the reef, and had a narrow escape themselves when the heavy combers swamped the launch a few minutes later, being rescued, however, by the launch Atlanta after clinging to the waterlogged boat for more than half an hour.

The tragedy cast a pall of sorrow over the Fourth of July celebration at Wrightsville Beach yesterday. Mr. Scarrett's body had not been recovered last night, though a lookout was being kept on Wrightsville Beach and Shell Island, on both sides of the Inlet. It will probably be cast ashore somewhere on one of the two beaches during the next few days, and if recovered will be sent to his home at Atlanta.

Mr. Scarrett was a married man, and his wife was with him at the beach, where they were stopping at Mr. H. C. Irwin's cottage. Mrs. Scarrett, prostrate with grief over the tragic death of her husband, left yesterday for her home in Atlanta, where Mr. Scarrett was employed as a stereotyper on the Atlanta Constitution, one of the Georgia metropolis' daily papers. He was about 40 years of age, and had no children. He stopped on his way home from attending a stereotypers' convention in the North.

Mr. Scarrett and the other members of the party left the beach yesterday morning at daybreak and spent the early part of the morning fishing outside. On the way back in, about 9 o'clock, an ebbing tide and a stiff northeast wind combined to make the surf over the bar a heavy one. When crossing the outer reef, hardly more than a quarter-mile off shore, an unusually heavy sea struck the Carolina, and tossed the boat up into the air. Mr. Starrett was sitting in the stern, and, according to his companions, had suffered much from seasickness during the morning, this evidently weakening him. None of the other members of the party saw him go overboard, but it is presumed that he lost his balance when the boat was hit by the heavy wave.

By the time his companions had discovered his plight, he was 10 or 15 yards away, and the launch was in the very thick of the stormy combers breaking on the reef. Captain Butt attempted to swing the boat around and go back to the assistance of Mr. Starrett, and as he did so another comber struck the launch sideways, half filling it with water and stopping the engine. This made it necessary to put out the anchor, and by this time Mr. Scarrett was out of reach of help by his companions.

In the meantime, Captain Wells' launch Suzanne, in charge of Capt. Dorsey Willis and Engineer James Willis, with Messrs. A. J. Mitchell, Jas. E. Willson, Jr., H. R. Aiken, John L. Galloway, Wm. L. Smith, Jr., J. B. Haman, Robert M. Cronly and E. D. Cody, members of another fishing party, returning to the beach several hundred yards in advance of the Carolina, noticed that the latter vessel had anchored fair on the reef, and surmising trouble of some kind, headed around and went to the assistance of the disabled craft.

When almost up with the Carolina, the men on the other boat had their attentions called to Mr. Scarrett' plight by his companions. Mr. Scarrett was floating on his back, apparently without any appreciable effort, and to the men in the Suzanne, appeared to be cool and collected. His eyes followed the course of the approaching boat, and Captain Willis made a line ready to throw to him. The throw was perfect, the coiled rope lighting fair on his breast and shoulders, but, much to the surprise of all on board the launch, he made no attempt to take hold of the rope. Other members of the party hurled life preservers to the doomed man, two falling in the water almost within reach of either hand. Mr. Scarrett seemed to make a faint attempt to catch one of the life preservers, but just then another heavy wave came between him and the Suzanne. By this time the launch was in the midst of the stormy combers on the reef, and only the skilful handling of Captain Willis kept the larger boat from swamping or going aground. As soon as was possible he brought the boat around and headed back toward the drowning man. Again the launch beat its way through the heavy waves on the reef, and circled back in the direction Mr. Scarrett had been drifting. Several hundred yards away his straw hat was located, floating along with the tide, but nothing further was seen of its wearer.

The Suzanne, after searching for some time for Mr. Scarrett, headed back to the swamped Carolina, and in passing, threw a line to Captain Butt, who made it fast to the bow railing on his launch. However, the anchor was bedded too firmly in the sands of the reef, and the railing gave way under the strain. Lacking the necessary length of line to enable her to anchor and drift in close enough to the reef to take off the men in the swamped boat, Captain Willis then headed for the beach, and went out in a smaller surf dory, equipped with a motor, to the assistance of Captain Butt and the other members of the party.

In the meantime, the Carolina had swamped and her stern was resting on the bottom. Captain Butt and Mr. Wooten held on to the bow, while Mr. Herring, who had a life preserver on, lost his hold but was supported by the preserver and a box that drifted by, and floated away with the ebb tide for some distance.

Capt. Walter Marine, in his launch the Atlanta, with Messrs. Fred Banck, Carl Fick and others, also coming in from a fishing trip outside, turned to the assistance of the unfortunate party, and after some difficult maneuvering, succeeded in anchoring and drifting near enough to take off Mr. Wooten and Captain Butt, then proceeding to the rescue of Mr. Herring, who was picked up several hundred yards away, having been supported above water by the life preserver and goods box.

Captain Butt, Mr. Herring and Mr. Wooten fared none the worse for their adventure, save for the grief and shock they naturally felt over the unfortunate death of Mr. Scarrett.

Both Captain Marine and Captain Willis risked the loss of their launches in taking them to the assistance of the smaller craft on the shallow and stormy waters on the reef, and each did all in his power to save members of the other party. Had they realized in time that Mr. Scarrett was too weak to help himself when the line was thrown to him, some of the men on the Suzanne could have gone to his assistance, but when this was known it was too late.

Two of Mr. Scarrett's associates on The Constitution, were on the beach yesterday, having arrived Friday, though Mr. Scarrett did not know that they were there. They were Mr. Edward Chapman, of the advertising department, and Mr. P. B. Green, of the mechanical department, both of whom were deeply affected by the unfortunate death of their fellow-worker.

INCREASE IN PORT RECEIPTS

Report of Collector of Customs for Fiscal Year Ended July 1—Growth of Commerce.

Yesterday morning figures were printed to show that during the past fiscal year, according to postal receipts, Wilmington made substantial increases all along the line, despite the cry of "hard times" and "financial depression." This morning, through the courtesy of Col. Walker Taylor, collector of customs, The Star is privileged to print figures showing even greater progress and commercial expansion during the year, as reflected in the growth of exports and imports for the year just ended.

While this record was attained both under Collector Taylor and retiring Collector B. F. Keith, and no ponical significance can be attached, it nevertheless shows a very gratifying increase in all branches of the city's commercial activity.

In the number of entries of merchandise for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, the increase was an even 50 per cent., the number last year being 154; this year 231.

The receipts of the customs service at Wilmington for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, were $24,934.00, while for the year just closed the receipts were $29,214.00, an increase of a little over 17 per cent.

The value of imports for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, were $3,460,419.00 while for the year just closed the value was $4,174,745.00, an increase of approximately 33 1-3 per cent.

An equally as good comparative showing is made in the value of exports for the fiscal year just closed, the value of these exports for the fiscal year ended in 1913 being $19,510,926 while for the fiscal year ended in 1914, the value was $25,870,851, an increase of 32 per cent.

Colonel Taylor has a corps of experienced and capable assistants in Messrs. Highsmith, Vines and Clayton, who have been in the service a number of years and the fine showing made at the close of the present fiscal year is both gratifying to the public and a reflection of splendid service upon those who have had charge of the customs service during the past year.

MOORE'S CREEK CELEBRATION

Association Meets and Decides on Auguest 6th, for Gathering.

Many Wilmington people and others throughout this section of the State will be interested in knowing that at a meeting of the Moore's Creek National Battleground Association at Currie on Thursday, it was decided to hold the annual celebration on the grounds on August 6th. President Geo. J. Moore and Secretary E. E. Murphy, of the Association, were at their post on Thursday as were also a number of members of the organization. All the old officers were re-elected and in addition there were added to the board of directors Messrs. A. D. Ward, J. W. Flynn, A. B. Croom, Jr., and D. J. Corbett, Jr.

Committees were apointed to secure a speaker for the celebration and also to arrange for a reunion of the Confederate veterans of Pender county on the grounds the afternoon of the same day. A later announcement with details of the programme will be given in due time and a very large crowd is expected.

HOTEL AT AUCTION.

Hanover Inn at Wrightsville Beach to Be Sold on July 15.

Wilmington is to have the novelty of the sale of a hotel at public auction. On Wednesday, July 15, on the front steps of that new and attractive hostelry at Wrightsville Beach, well known to the public generally as Hanover Inn, the real estate firm of J. G. Wright & Son will sell at public auction this entire property.

The Hanover was built two years ago and has had two successful seasons. It is now being sold to settle the affairs of the estate of one of the owners of the property. The sale will in no wise affect the present lessees of the property, Mrs. Walt and Mrs. Dishosoway.

The Hanover is one of the most modern of the beach hotels and practically every room has a bath adjoining. All rooms are provided with hot and cold water.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH IS CELEBRATED HERE

General Cessation of Business in Wilmington

Annual Athletic Events at Lumina Yesterday Attract Many Spectators—Winners in Meet—Other Features of Day.

The celebration of the Glorious Fourth by the people of Wilmington was marked by a general cessation of business and thousands visited the various beach resorts in this vicinity for a day of rest and recreation. The banks and public offices were closed for the day, while many of the business houses closed for a part or all of the day. There was in evidence little of that noise that features the celebration of the Fourth in some places. There was here and there an explosion of a cannon cracker, but on the whole there was the quietness that usually prevails on Sunday.

Many of the residences and business houses were decorated with Old Glory. The decorations, however, like the noise were chiefly rather scanty.

With the exception of the sad tragedy at Moare's Inlet, particulars of which are given in another column, there was no accident, so far as could be learned last night, to mar the pleasure of the day.

There were nearly 6,000 visitors to Wrightsville Beach yesterday, practically the same number as last year. The athletic events at 11 o'clock attracted many spectators and proved to be unusually interesting. There were great throngs of people who went down yesterday afternoon. The showers that fell during the afternoon doubtless kept some at home. The Tidewater Power Company had their full quota of cars in requisition and these were filled to overflowing.

The steamer Wilmington made three trips to Carolina Beach during the day and carried a large crowd on each trip. The celebration at this beach as at Wrightsville Beach was "safe and sane" and the usual good order was in evidence.

Athletic Events.

The 15 events of the athletic meet at Lumina, which began at 11 o'clock and continued in progress for two hours, proved to be the most successful of any of the five annual meets that have been held there. The number of entries were 350 and there were so many in some of the events that they had to be conducted in heats. That the people of the city are interested in athletics was shown by the large crowd present.

With the exception of the girls' flag race, in which the first prizes were two-pound boxes of candy, the winner of the first place in each event was given a silver cup. Three round trip tickets to the beach were awarded to those winning second places and one round trip ticket for the third places. The winners of the various events are as follows:

100-yard dash (110 pounds)—First place, won by Gerald Mercer; second, W. Hashagen; third, Hardy Jacobs.

100-yard dash (110 pounds to 135 pounds)—First place, W. G. Hashagen; second, C. Hunt; third, C. Shepard.

100-yard dash (over 135 pounds)—First place, H. Conghenour; second, Avon Blue; third, Ike Grainger.

Double-standing broad jump (under 110 pounds)—First place, Gerald Mercer; second, Hardy Jacobs; third, Charles Morton.

Double-standing broad jump (110 pounds and over)—First place, Avon Blue; second, W. E. West; third, Louis Hill.

Sack race (under 110 pounds)—First place, H. H. Merritt; second, H. C. Merritt; third, M. M. Hinnant.

Girls' flag race (under 12 years)—First place, Eunice Williams; second, Mary E. Herbst; third, Mary Warren.

Girls' sack race (over 12 years)—First place, Madge Cavenaugh; second, Wallace Brady; third, Oma Williams.

Potato race (under 110 pounds)—First place, Gerald Mercer; second, Charlie Morton; third, John Bonitz.

Potato race (over 110 pounds)—First place, Carlyle Shepard; second, Walter Hashagen; third, W. E. West.

220-yard dash (open to all)—First place, R. M. Williams; second, J. D. Hedrick; third, Charlie Jones.

Swimming race (under 110 pounds)—First place, John Bonitz; second, Clewell Howell; third, Will Roberts.

Swimming race (110 pounds and over)—First place, R. Davis; second, D. Murchison; third, C. Creteau.

Canoe race through the surf—First place, Walters and Murchison; second, Parsley and Taylor; third Clark and Corbett.

A silver cup was awarded each of the winners of first place in the canoe race. This was the first of a series of four races for the summer. The winners of first place were awarded seven points in this contest, the winners of second place five points; the third team three points and Messrs. Davis and Lord, who finished in fourth place, were awarded one point.

The officers of the events were as follows: Referee, J. B. Huntington; marshal, J. P. Seitters; judges, Ferd Duls, R. S. McClelland, Will Shaw and B. F. Yandel; starter, W. Fowler Morrison; linesmen, John Hazelhurst and Charlie Johnson.

Yacht Races.

The open yacht race in the sound by members of the Carolina Yacht Club proved to be a most interesting event and was witnessed by a large number of spectators. There were seven vessels entered for the race, three for the sloop race and four in the class A race. There was a fine breeze blowing and the vessels made good time, completing the trip over the course of eight miles in approximately one hour and 35 minutes. The closest race was between Capt. R. C. Rankin and Capt. J. S. Brown, the former winning first place in the class A race by just two seconds.

The race at all times was spirited and there was no time when the winners of first place were sure of winning.

Capt. Donald Parsley with the Dixie won first place in the sloop race; second place was won by Capt. O. A. Wiggins with the Puzzle and the third place by Capt. O. A. Wiggins with the Don Julian.

Capt. R. G. Rankin in 69 won first place in the class A race; second place was won by Capt. J. S. Brown in 66; third place by Capt. T. W. Davis in 65, and fourth place by Capt. W. C. Lord in 71.

A deep cut about four liches in length was inflicted on her left thigh and she was also bruised about her face. Her condition, however, is not serious, and she was reported last night as resting as well as could be expected.

Practically the entire day was spent at the rocks, and despite a somewhat rough sea, and a shower, the time passed off most enjoyably. The fish bit very well and a large catch was made.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. AYCOCK AT WARSAW

Warsaw, N. C., July 4.—The most brilliant social event that has taken place here for years was the beautiful wedding reception given by Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Best to their daughter, Mrs. W. B. Aycock (nee Miss Lucile Best), and her husband, now of Wilson, N. C. The hours were arranged from 6:30 to 9 o'clock in order that a great number of their out-of-town friends might avail themselves of the train schedules. In the afternoon the town was alive with numbers of visitors from a distance, enthusiastic with delightful expectancy.

At the appointed hour the handsome residence of the bride's parents was open to more than 200 guests. Little Miss Martha Best received cards at the door. The guests were received in the hall by Miss Margaret Pierce and Mrs. James Hicks Pierce, who were gowned in silver embroidered net over lavender charmeuse and white crepe meteor, respectively.

Mrs. W. L. Hill, with queenly manner and attire of lemon charmeuse with pearl trimmings ushered the guests into the drawing room where, with the assistance of Mr. Hill, they were presented to the receiving line, Mrs. Lucius Best handsomely gowned in a gown of black lace and Mr. Best, standing on the right. Then came the bride and groom the former lovely in a gown of ivory toned satin en train embroidered in gold, and carrying an exquisite fan det attached by a rope of pearls. Next were Miss Mary Aycock, dainty in canary chiffon and Mr. Connor Aycock, sister and brother of the groom. Mrs. Earl Best, in white crepe chiffon and lace with Mr. Earl Best. Then came Mrs. Herbert Best gowned in apricot chiffon taffeta, with pearl trimming, standing with Miss Erwin Carter in shell pink. Next was Mrs. Debernia Faison, elegant black taffeta. To the right stood Rev. Geo. Matthews, Mrs. Marshall McD. Williams, stately in maize charmeuse and old gold lace. Near her stood Mrs. Ralph Faison in dresden crepe. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Carter, the latter in white crepe chiffon. Completing the line was Dr. J. M. Williams and Miss Mary Devane in white embroidered crepe with pearl ornaments.

Miss Annie Rose Williams ushered the guests into the spacious dining room where the green and white color scheme was carried out in lovely detail from the shaded candelabra and masses of brides roses with ferns to the refreshments. Ice cream molded in white rose design with green leaf, and heart shaped cakes frosted in green bearing the letter A were served with candies and bonbons of suggestive and appropriate shape. Misses Olivia Best, Hulda Best, Brookie May Hines and Louise Anderson served most graciously in the dining room.

Miss Susie Faison ushered the guests from here to the punch bowl in the hall, where Miss Anna Pierce gowned in banana charmeuse dispensed delicious punch from the grape adorned bowl of Bacchus. Miss Helen Fonveille and Miss Fay Pierce directed the guests into the gift room where Mrs. Faison Pierce in an elegant gown of delft blue embroidered crepe de chine presided, assisted by her husband and Mr. Herbert Best.

A magnificent array of silver, china and cut glass there in evidence showed a wide circle of friends on the part of both Mr. and Mrs. Aycock. The parents of the bride gave a chest of silver, Washington pattern. From the library the guests passed out into the spacious veranda to the lawn where punch was again dispensed. Misses Margaret Best and Lou Mitchell Faison served.

The Goldsboro Orchestra ensconced behind an embankment of palms rendered alluring music, from the rear of the hall, which was attractive throughout with sweet pea and carnation decorations.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Susanna Busbee and Mary A. Aycock, Messrs. Connor Aycock and Philip Woolcott, of Raleigh; Mrs. Mary Devane, Eunice, Mary and Rowena Borden, Mary Cleve Daniels, Sarah Micheaux, Ethel Miller, Julia B. Councilman Wood Thinks Item of Local Interest.

The following clipping was handed in by Councilman T. W. Wood, who requested that it be printed:

"Topeka, Kan., July 1.—A number of Kansas municipalities are taking an active interest in a movement to allow cities to issue bonds for erecting and maintaining ice plants. The idea seems to have been growing in favor for several years, and it is considered certain that a concerted effort will be made to have the 1915 legislature pass a law to that effect.

"A bill giving first-class cities the right to issue bonds for the construction of municipal ice plants was introduced at the 1913 session, but failed of passage. Now Kansas City, Coffeyville and several other cities in Kansas are looking into the matter. The municipal light and waterworks systems of Kansas City have been such a success that the city is planning to run an ice plant in connection."

Church Calls Pastor.

The Ebenezer Baptist church, colored, which has been without a pastor for several months, has extended a call to Rev. J. N. McKnight, of Burgaw. He has done splendid work among his people there and has gained the confidence of the better element of both races because of his ability to reach the masses of his people and command their respect and esteem. The members of Ebenezer church are gratified to believe that he will accept their call, and are looking forward to his coming with the expectation of seeing an increase in the influence of the church.

Death of Young Son.

Friends will sympathize tenderly with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Everett, of Seagate, in the death of their young son, Herbert Almond Everett, which occurred at the residence of Mr. Everett's mother, No. 713 1-2 North Fourth street, yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. The little fellow was 16 months old. The remains accompanied by members of the family were taken on the 6:45 train yesterday afternoon to Magnolia, where the funeral and interment will take place today.

—In the list of those who have entered the contest for the prizes offered by Dr. L. B. Sasser for the best yields of corn, appearing elsewhere in today's issue, should be included the name of Mr. Hugh M. Walton, of Jacksonville, N. C.

CAPE coats and cape wraps are already heralded for autumn fashions. In the most up to date summer models, from the capes made of velvet to those fashioned from delicate and transparent fabrics, one sees evidences of details that commence to mark this change from the present sleeveless cape.

Sometimes the cape itself is turned into a cape wrap shape, with the peculiar shaping that makes a dolmanlike sleeve effect. Again, the cape shape is there, hanging in long godets at the back especially and sleeves are added, mortising into the shoulders by the well known raglan shoulder seams. The shorter cape attached to the longer cape, not about the neck but about the shoulders, forming a sort of yoke, is one of the latest cape constructions. Sometimes the under cape has sleeves, sometimes only an arm hole, or, as has been said above, with the lower part grading down into a loose sleevelike shape for the hand to pass through.

A black velvet cape pictured here is made in a way that departs from all the usual regulations of ordinary dressmaking. The yoke and fronts are in one piece, a straight fold of goods. There is no attempt to fit it about the neck; in fact, that is what makes the style of it. The lining of bayadere striped silk rolls over and shows in a sort of loose rever. The cape part, long, straight and gathered into this curious yoke, does not extend across the front of the garment, but starts just in front of the arms. The lining of the lower part is of one of the plain colors that form the stripes.

In direct opposition to this is a very transparent unlined cape made of white silk voile and worn over a simple girlish frock of the same material. This cape has a suspicion of sleeves that look like wide hems finishing the arm slips. The entire cape is striped with rows of crystal beads accentuated every so often by embroidered motifs of little green leaves and silver flowers. A lacelike looped passementerie of crystal beads hems the outer edge.

An afternoon cape wrap of Havana brown velvet cloth is a curious combination of the old baggy wrap and the new cape. The long cape is cut on the peg top idea, so that the draped fulness on the sides makes something more than the usual cape slit for a sleeve. Lined with white chiffon, the lining edge has an unusual and pretty finishing detail—a loose roll of the chiffon caught down every so often so that it looks like a slender festoon trimming.

The upper cape does not come up to the neck, but is applied to the wrap in a circular line about the shoulders, leaving a rather wide hem beyond. This is, however, covered at the back by the large loosely rolled collar of black and white taffeta; a white lozenger button fastens the coat at one side.

The lack of transparency in the taffeta afternoon dress models is one of the most striking of their style features. In some of the latest models there is little filminess beyond the filling in of the V between the blouse fronts. Even the collar, though perhaps of thin material like tulle or lace, approaches the old standing collar and stock forms so much that it seems but a precedent of the coming high ones promised us for autumn.

These white taffeta dresses have supplanted the white satin ones of preceding summers. A typical one, pictured here, has a skirt foundation that is covered with ruffles, two widths being used. The long sleeves are ruffle finished at the wrists. The sash, of the material, is tied in a careless bow and ends in front. Revers outline the surplice fronts and a striped chemisette has a real dickey collar wired to make it stand erect.

In the first afternoon autumn suit and dress models that are imported for the wholesale manufacturer—who must get out his sample lines early—there are some interesting developments of the long tunic skirt. Instead of the long tunic extending entirely around the skirt in one model the tunic is only at the sides. This is done by cutting the front breadth wider about eight inches above the hem, and this extra fulness—about a yard on each side—drops in fanlike godets. The vertical edges are seamed in with the back breadth. In other skirt models the widened front breadth extends entirely about the skirt hanging in these pretty circular tunic godets, and the drop skirt, faced, is visible only from the back, where it shows below this circular back tunic.

The coat suits show models that approach more nearly the fitted coat than we have seen for many seasons. Many of the dresses show under their transparencies real fitted waists. The basque dresses are combined in the latest models with ruffled skirts; in one of these models the ruffles of a contrasting color are wired to make them stand out, forecasting, perhaps, the old time crinoline fashions.

This all leads to the autumn corset. Everything in the new modes demands a corset higher above the waist line, and sooner or later the corset must conform to this tendency toward fitted lines. Not that the transition will be abrupt—a corset that is to above the waist ine can be worn with one of the new long brassieres that really replace the fitted basque linings of other days. Those who intend wearing the basque fashions directly had better, when ordering a new corset, have it made high enough above the waist to lightly support the bust.

TAFFETAS POPULAR FOR AFTERNOON FROCKS

TAFFETAS continues the leading fabric for afternoon frocks. You see it at the race course worn by the best dressed women, in all the charming styles and with all the graceful, soft falling draperies to which it lends itself so well.

Silk manufacturers have modified the texture a little. While still preserving its softness, they have given it a little more weight, making it resemble faille, and have given it the name of "taffetas gros de Londres."

One commences again to see the shot taffetas, which assuredly has style, but as yet is not sufficiently popular to replace the favorite colors, navy blue and black. However, one sees happy combinations of the changeable taffetas with checked silk in the same tones.

We still have flounces, often cut in large round scallops, and long pleated tunics opening over an underdress straight to the collar, with a light waistcoat.

Capes are replacing with great charm the jackets of certain tailor made costumes.

The little coats that are most worn are short in front, lengthened in the back by a pleated basque falling over the pleated tunic of the skirt. They are generally worn with a vest of white piqué, with points over the jacket front and a large Normandy collar.

For the tailor-made costumes there is a great deal of gabardine used, and the most popular colors are navy blue and prairie green.

The hats at present bristle as though with the spoils of the "demoiselle de Numidie." Toques of shiny straw trimmed with shiny ribbon or shiny foliage are the vogue. Everything shines with extraordinary brilliance for the moment.

The white hats have made their appearance. They are trimmed with wings, with white foliage or with roses or lilies of fine muslin.

A wreath of gardenias, with their leaves, looks extremely well on the sailor hats which are being so much worn, or again flowers of a citron yellow add to the white a soft but at the same time a striking note.

The flat hats have been superseded by the "Nimiche," which is very much raised in the back and of an exceedingly pretty, irregular form, showing one side of the face more than the other.

The feathers of condor which trim the soft, fluffy little capes, go wonderfully well with the hats of dead white, which are the only kind worn at the moment, and they soften the face in a becoming manner, especially as veils are almost entirely banished at present, excepting of course, be it understood, for travelling or automobiling.

Evening dresses are cut extremely low, especially in the back, and the shoulders and arms are quite bare. Pearls and strass are used in great quantity for trimming, and straps of them only bind the corsage to the shoulders. The sheerest materials are in vogue, soft silks, tulle and mousseline de soie.

IDEAS FOR COSTUMES PICKED UP AT THE PARIS RACES.

THE "Réunions Sportives" which are taking place at present form a delightful background for all the feminine charms, and in spite of the many criticisms heard, you may rest assured that women of taste will know how to dress and look charming.

Some of the newspapers have reproduced snapshots taken at the races giving a most unflattering idea of the toilettes seen. And since these pictures we have heard much of the failure of Parisian taste. This is a mistake, but it has always been thus, no matter what the fashion. The results of any photographed action are unexpected, and often disastrous. It is so when horses are taken galloping, some seem to have only three legs, others are in attitudes worthy of Pegasus, others more grotesque still, and the apparatus is no more indulgent to humans.

The same toilette photographed by chance at the races is not at all the same, when posed at a photographer's who is a specialist, knowing the best and most graceful side. It is totally different. It is both unjust and unkind to base an opinion on any snapshot.

Every one who had the privilege of being present at the recent Paris réunions, had the opportunity to see what a number of delightfully dressed women were present.

It certainly resolves itself into a matter of personal taste. Whatever the fashion there will always be found some who will commit errors and faults of taste.

It would be disastrous to think that after the seal of approval has been set upon the fashions by the highest authorities, women could be made responsible for the degree of elegance and harmony in their costumes.

The Parisienne who has taste and intelligence will never be imposed upon by a costume that is not suitable and be coming. Most of the outrageous and fantastic creations turned out by the couturiers are for export, but it is a matter also of the incomplete education of the taste of a number of women.

The art of the toilette is only understood by a select few—even in Paris, a city with worldwide fame for its feminine taste. To believe this it is only necessary to notice how few are dressed with sure and harmonious effect.

If you go suddenly from one part of town to another, for instance from the Champs-Elysées to the boulevards, after passing the Chaussée d'Antin all is changed—the women are no longer the same.

Who has not noticed the curious difference between the Bois de Boulogne in the morning and in the afternoon? or between l'Allée du Bois on Sunday morning and Sunday afternoon?

This passes without comment, and goes to prove that the mode may change, but the art of adapting it happily will always be the peculiar faculty of the patrician, above all, of those who have education and innate taste and refinement.

Occasionally we meet delightful young women of modest condition, simply clad, but who produce the impression that they possess naturally a taste for dress. In these cases we generally find that such a one touches either remotely or closely the centre which creates the mode.

THE RECIPE FOR THE PARISIAN SILHOUETTE IS SIMPLE.

THE Parisian silhouette is such a very indefinable thing and made up of such elusive details that it is very hard to tabulate wherein lies its essence and why some women possess it with apparently little effort while it is denied to others, no matter how hard they may strive. To begin with, there is nothing fixed about it. It has a way of varying with the seasons and at the moment it consists much more in grace and suppleness than in sculptural beauty. In fact, it is by no means always the prettiest women who know how to achieve the Parisian silhouette.

But all this does not explain the why and the wherefore of this most sought-after attraction. Perhaps, after all, it is its mystery and secret that lends it so much charm. It it were absolutely necessary to make out some sort of recipe, the first ingredient would be a woman who was young, slender and graceful. Her undergarments would be suppressed and her toilette worn over a supple ceinture which does not in the least change her natural figure.

It would be a simple dress and yet quite original, with a clever daring cut seasoned with a personal touch that lifts it out of the range of banality. With this would be worn a little amusing and yet becoming hat, composed with an eye to the harmony of the entire silhouette, although some of its details may be quaintly daring.

Of course, success in the creation of the Parisian silhouette is not by any means inevitable, even if the preceding recipe is carefully followed. In the carrying out of any recipe for the making of a special dish there is always that intangible element, the method of mixing, to be reckoned with, and the manner of wearing the prescribed garments has not a little to do with the possession of the wished-for silhouette.

If the truth must be told, there are comparatively few women outside of Paris who have grasped this art.

There is at the moment a division in the feminine camp over two characteristic details of the prevailing fashions, for on the one side there are the advocates of the skirt narrow at the foot and on the other the partisans of width. It is easily foreseen that the latter side will gain the victory, for it holds the trump card of novelty, and that is enough.

SUMMER ACTIVITIES AT WAKE FOREST COLLEGE

Heating Plant to be Installed in New Dormitory

Additions to and Temporary Changes in Faculty and Courses—Dr. Sledd and Dr. Cullom Go Abroad

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wake Forest, N. C., July 2.—A heating plant will be installed in the new dormitory, now approaching completion, which will heat not only that building, but also the new church, the alumni building, the administration building, and later the chapel building. Running water is to be put in the old dormitories during the vacation.

Mr. Robert Philip McCutcheon, late of the University of Minnesota, will have charge of the department of English next session. He received from Wake Forest College his B. A. degree in 1910. He won the Thomas Dixon essay medal and the Student fiction medal in his senior year. He was assistant in English while a student here. Since leaving college he taught a year in Franklin, Va., high school, and spent two years at Harvard University in the study of English, taking his master's degree there. During the past session he taught English in the University of Minnesota. It is fortunate that in the absence of both regular teachers of English the college has been able to secure a scholarly and able teacher who thoroughly understands local conditions.

Dr. Sledd Sails for Europe.

Dr. B. F. Sledd, of the department of English, was recently elected to a traveling fellowship of the Kahn Foundation. The fund was bequeathed by Albert Kahn, of Paris, for the purpose of paying the expenses of two college professors on a world's tour each year. Dr. Sledd left on a White Star Line steamer from Boston for Plymouth, England, June 30th. After a month in England, Scotland and Ireland, he will visit Holland and Belgium, go up the Rhine into Switzerland, thence to Moscow in September, and across the continent to China and Japan by the Siberian Railway. The winter months will be given to the Philippines, Java, India, Egypt and Palestine, leaving the following spring and summer for Southern Europe. He will be abroad 15 months. The trustees have generously given him a year's leave of absence on the best financial terms possible. Mrs. Sledd will meet him in Europe next summer and finish the trip with him. Students and faculty regard the appointment as a great honor to the college, and unite in wishing him the fullest enjoyment of his rare opportunity.

Taken Over by College.

At the annual meeting of the board of trustees, the courses heretofore given upon the initiative and responsibility of certain of the professors, were taken over by the college. Besides the course in law given by Dean Gulley and Prof. Timberlake, two courses in French and one in German are given this year by Dr. J. H. Gorrell, one course in Greek is given by Dr. G. W. Paschall, and three courses in Latin are given by Dr. Hubert M. Poteat. The summer course is given credit in the requirement for degrees.

Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Poteat, and their daughter, Miss Helen Poteat, have just returned from Blue Ridge and Asheville. Dr. Poteat gave two courses at the Southern Students' Conference; one at the Y. W. C. A. and one at the Y. M. C. A., with several platform addresses.

Dr. Poteat will leave July 6th for Asheville where the Special Freight Rate Commission will resume its sittings July 7th. While in the mountains he will address the employed officers at the Blue Ridge Conference, July 12th. He will address the Bible Conference August 7th. Before returning he will make two addresses at Athens, Ga., at the First Baptist church.

Prof. J. H. Highsmith, of the chair of education, after an institute engagement at Vanceboro, began a heavy schedule of work in the summer school of the State Normal and Industrial College at Greensboro.

New Member of Faculty.

Dr. John William Nowell, associate professor of chemistry in the North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, has been appointed associate professor of chemistry in Wake Forest College, and will begin his work here with the opening of the next session. Dr. Nowell received the degree of bachelor of arts from Wake Forest in 1903, and the degree of master of arts in 1907. For the session of 1908-09 he was instructor in chemistry here. Johns Hopkins University conferred the degree of Ph. D. upon him in 1912. He has held the associate professorship of chemistry in the North Carolina A. and M. for the past two years. In addition to his work in chemistry, Dr. Nowell will have two classes in the department of biology, minerology and geology the entire session and elemementary physiology covering the fall term.

Mr. Judson Dunbar Ives, M. A., instructor in biology, closed with the session of 1913-14 ten years of service in that department, marked by a rare promptness and fidelity. He was graduated with the degree of bachelor of arts from Wake Forest College in 1905 and in 1906 he won the master's degree. He was assistant in biology for the years 1904-05 and in 1905-06, and in 1906 he was appointed instructor in biology, holding this position until the close of the session 1913-14. He served the local church as organist regularly at prayer meeting, frequently at Sunday school, occasionally at the Sunday morning and evening services.

A 40,000 gallon steel tank is in progress of erection to meet the enlarged demand upon the college water system. It stands at the deep well at the bottom of the campus.

In the recent catalogue of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., the recapitulation of its students by colleges shows that Wake Forest College was represented by 38 men, and that the next largest representation was 17 from Richmond College.

Law School Attendance Large.

The summer law school, which opened on Monday, June 8th, has the largest attendance in its history. Dean N. Y. Gulley and Prof. E. W. Timberlake were greeted by 52 earnest and promising men on the first day. Among this number four States are represented. The summer students this year are granted the privilege of the college library. Mr. R. F. Paschal, who was assistant librarian last year, is in charge for the summer.

Dr. W. B. Royall and Dr. C. E. Taylor are spending part of their vacation in New York City. Dr Royall is accompanied by Mrs. Royall.

Miss Louise P. Heims, the college librarian, is spending the summer at her home in Philadelphia.

Dr. E. P. Marton Dead

Former students will be grieved to learn of the death of Dr. E. P. Marton. Dr. Marton was associate professor of English in 1910-11. Since leaving Wake Forest he had been engaged in educational work in Chicago. Dr. Marton deeply impressed those who knew him by his profound scholarship and sterling character.

Mr. Bruce Powers, and Profs. H. M. Poteat, W. C. Smith and E. W. Timberlake, Jr., spent the week beginning May 30th, in New York City. They enjoyed the trip very much, to Prof. J. B. Hubbell, who has been granted a year's leave of absence by the trustees, will return to Columbia University in the fall to complete his studies in English. He is spending his vacation with his parents at Mountain Park in Surry county.

Dr. W. R. Cullum left Wake Forest June 2nd for a two months' trip to Palestine. He goes with a party conducted by Dr. Wicker, of Richmond.

The Sophomore-Junior debate will take place on the last Friday in October. The day will be set apart as a regular holiday to be known as "Society Day."

Prof. H. A. Jones will again attend the session of Columbia University, continuing his studies in mathematics.

Prof. J. L. Lake is spending his vacation with relatives at Upperville, Va.

Judge Hoyle Matt Gowing account of the metropolis. Dr. Poteat attended the commencement of Columbia University.

Impressions Received At Press Convention

Major H. A. London, of Pittsboro, editor of the Chatham Record, has been a member of the North Carolina Press Association for 35 years, since 1879, and has attended most of the annual meetings of the newspaper men during that period. No member of the association is more popular among the brethren of the press or more highly esteemed by them. What he says of the recent meeting at Wrightsville Beach and of Wilmington and its environs will be read with much interest by the readers of The Star. What he says will be read as from one who speaks with authority based on an intimate knowledge of the history of the Association and its many previous meetings. It follows.

"The annual session of the North Carolina Press Association was held on last Wednesday and Thursday at Wrightsville Beach, and was much enjoyed by all who were so fortunate as to be present. A very interesting and instructive programme had been prepared and was most pleasantly carried out. The literary features were unusually attractive and instructive, especially the address of President Clarence H. Poe and the address of Mr. Norman H. Hapgood, the editor of Harper's Weekly. Matters of much interest to the editors were ably discussed and much valuable information exchanged between them.

"At no previous meeting of the association had we ever heard so many very interesting and instructive addresses or essays. Every one of them was full of food for thought. Quite a complimentary resolution was adopted in reference to the addres of Mr. Bion H. Butler, a Northern man, who has been residing in this State for about 30 years. His address set forth so clearly and with such an array of figures and statistics the resources and advantages of this State that a resolution was adopted requesting the State Board of Agriculture to have it published in pamphlet form and distributed throughout the North and Northwest, so as to attract here desirable immigrants and capitalists.

"Everything was done that was possible for the pleasure and entertainment of the editors. They were met on their arrival at Wilmington by members of the Wilmington committee and warmly welcomed, and safely escorted to Wrightsville Beach. The members of this committee were unremitting in their attention to the visitors and succeeded most admirably in contributing to their pleasure. This writer is especially indebted for courtesies to Messrs. Cowan, Clawson, Bell, Lawson, Parham and Livingston. To the Tidewater Power Company are the editors indebted for one of the most pleasant features of their visit, and that was free rides over their electric lines all over the city of Wilmington and from that city to Wrightsville Beach. A badge was pinned on every editor and the member of his family who accompanied him, which enabled them to ride on the electric cars whenever and wherever they wished, and this privilege was much enjoyed.

"Through the kindness of some of the public spirited citizens of Wilmington the editors were given an automobile ride one afternoon over that city and over many miles of the splendid roads of New Hanover county, which were so level and smooth. When enjoying that ride we wished so much that Chatham county could have at least a few miles of such roads.

"The association was in session two days (Wednesday and Thursday), and on Friday they were given an excursion down the river to Southport and Fort Caswell on the steamer Wilmington, that has been owned for many years by that genial gentleman, Capt. John W. Harper, who has always given this excursion to the editors every time they have held their meetings at Wilmington or Wrightsville Beach. At Fort Caswell the editors were shown some of Uncle Sam's preparations for repelling any hostile fleet that might venture too near the entrance to the Cape Fear river. The United States government has expended large sums of money in recent years in making this one of the strongest and best equipped forts on the Atlantic coast. Its long-range cannon can easily repel the attack of any fleet, and the editors were much interested in the working of one of those big guns, which was raised and lowered with such apparent ease. The appearance of the new Fort Caswell was in most pleasing and striking contrast to the ruins of the old fort, which we visited over 30 years ago.

"After visiting Fort Caswell (which is now garrisoned by 325 soldiers) the editors steamed to Southport, one mile distant, and were escorted to the Masonic building, in which a sumptuous luncheon had been prepared and was much enjoyed, consisting of clam chowder, all kinds of fish fresh from the water and other appetizing edibles. An eloquent address of welcome was delivered by C. Ed Taylor, Esq., a prominent lawyer of Southport, who impressed on his hearers the great advantages offered by the capacious harbor at the mouth of the Cape Fear river and the possibilities possessed by it, especially in view of the completion of the Panama canal. This visit was the first ever made by many of the editors to Southport and its magnificent harbor was a revelation to them.

"About a mile up the river, after leaving Southport, is the government quarantine station, at which the steamer stopped and gave the editors an opportunity of inspecting its workings and apparatus. While there they were treated by the officers in charge to some ice-cold grape juice, which was very refreshing and much enjoyed. This mild beverage is not prohibited in the recent order of the Secretary of the Navy, that has been so much discussed and cussed by some. This outing on the river was very enjoyable in many respects. It was quite a novelty to many who had never before steamed down the Cape Fear, and it gave a most favorable opportunity to the editors and their wives to become better acquainted with each other, which, however, made their parting the more regretful.

"Since the last meeting had been held in 1910 at Wrightsville Beach, many improvements had been made at that place, which is now one of the most popular and attractive resorts on the South Atlantic coast. All along the electric line from Wilmington, a distance of about ten miles, the country has been greatly improved and so many residences have been built that it seems almost like a city all the way between Wilmington and Wrightsville There is a most striking as well as most pleasing difference or contrast between the present appearance and that of some years ago, when a person in going from Wilmington to Wrightsville had to drive a vehicle through deep sand all the way through a country in which no human habitation could be seen.

"It has always been a great pleasure to this writer to meet with his brother editors at their annual sessions, and this last meeting was not less pleasant than those for many years past, although many familiar faces were absent. Indeed, there are only two editors now members of the association who were members when we joined in 1879, and they are Messrs. James A. Robinson, of Durham, and David R. Whichard, of Greenville. At no meetings of any body of men that we have attended is there more courtesy and kindly feeling exhibited than at these annual meetings of the North Carolina Press Association. And it may be safely asserted that no body of men have done or are doing more for the upbuilding of our good old State than our poorly paid, but patriotic and public-spirited editors."

LUMBERTON EDITOR'S IMPRESSIONS.

In the very foremost rank of North Carolina weekly and semi-weekly newspapers, in point of age, influence, quality and service, is the Robesonian, of Lumberton, whose editor, Mr. J. A. Sharpe, is one of the brightest and cleverest of the brethren of the North Carolina press. As usual, he attended the Press Convention at Wrightsville Beach and "took in" the "whole show." Here is what he says of it, in part:

"The memory of the oldest members runs not back to a more delightful convention of the State Press Association than the one held at Wrightsville Beach last week. That is what the oldest members say, and for ourself we are prepared to swear that no more delightful session has been held in recent years. The newspaper men and other citizens of Wilmington were untiring in their efforts to contribute to the comfort and pleasure of the visitors, and they succeeded so admirably that no one could possibly have spent a tedious or unpleasant or unprofitable moment.

"One of the most prominent of the newspaper men who were busy making it pleasant for their guests was our own J. E. Thompson, of The Star, Robeson county has a right to claim him and to be proud of him. Then there were Messrs. Clawson, Parham (another Robeson county man), Aiken, Bernard, and Livingston, all of The Star; James H. Cowan (a whole team in himself—a steamengine in britches) and William E. Lawson, of The Dispatch; and Benjamin Bell, Sr., formerly of The Wilmington Messenger. If these gentlemen ever got weary on the job or ever got off the job nobody ever caught them at it, and they were aided in royal fashion by others of Wilmington. And certainly any mention that did not include the Tidewater Power Co., would be incomplete. That is one corporation to which "soulless" does not belong. It has contributed largely to the wonderful development of Wilmington in recent years and it is giving Wilmington a street car service that is no doubt the envy of other cities of equal size. Its splendid service was at the free disposal of the editors and their families during their stay, and the automobile ride given by citizens of Wilmington over the city and surrounding country Thursday afternoon began and ended with a ride in special cars."

TEN DOLLARS FOR ONE.

The following is an editorial from the Littleton News Reporter, T. R. Walker, editor:

"Wilmington and Wrightsville are receiving bouquets from the press of North Carolina without number and of the most beneficial type. The citizens of the two places opened their hearts and purses to make the meeting of the association there last week a pleasant one. Judged from the comment of the editors who were there they were so entertained as to make that session one of the pleasantest ones in the history of the association. There are not many people in the State who will not read something about Wrightsville and Wilmington and the hospitality of the citizenship of our sea coast cities this week. There are no people that appreciate kindness more than the men who spend their best thought for the upbuilding of their country at the editor's desk, and none who more fully reciprocate a favor than editors. The cities by the sea will get ten dollars worth of readable advertising for every dollar spent for the pleasure and comfort of the pen pushers. The Association is not a band of beggars and does not ask for gifts. They pay their expenses at such places that are made necessary by the meeting, but are appreciative of voluntary courtesies."

New Orleans, July 3.—The cost of the campaign for the eradication of bubonic plague here will be from $20,000 to $25,000 per month, and a minimum time of six months will be required to thoroughly free the city of contagion, according to a statement today by Surgeon General Blue, of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, befofre a citizens' committee. Dr. Blue today received authorization from Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to take charge of the work here.

Householder and Burglar

By W. R. Sneddon.

C Buck.

The Correct Manual of Light Conversation.

HOUSEHOLDER.—Ah! Good evening.

BURGLAR.—Good morning, sir, if you will pardon my correcting you.

H.—Thank you, sir. Good morning. To what am I indebted for this matutinal visit?

B.—To be frank with you, I am a burglar.

H.—I appreciate your frankness, while at the same time I in a manner resent your intrusion.

B.—Ah, pardon me! It must appear an intrusion. I confess it had not struck me in that light, but be so kind as to look upon it in a friendly attitude.

H.—I must repay your courtesy in a corresponding degree. My only regret is that we have not been introduced. Might I dare ask your name?

B.—Any audacity might be pardoned on such an occasion as this, but I am indescribably pained to have to refuse your request. Still, if you desire it——

H.—I do with all my heart.

B.—Then call me Bill—a name long ago associated with my profession.

H.—Kindly be seated, Bill. You must have traveled a considerable distance to come to see me. Might I ring this bell and order some refreshments for you?

B.—Sir, there is nothing I so much desire as to accept a highball at your hands, but I fear the ringing would be attended with some degree of intrusion upon our present charming privacy.

H.—So be it. I have every wish to make you feel at home, especially as I see you have brought a novel form of automatic pistol, the examination of which would undoubtedly give me great pleasure.

B.—I am gratified by your interest, but as I realize that you are at the moment somewnat fatigued, I cannot allow myself to impose upon your kindhearted endeavor to set me entirely at ease.

H.—Might I hope that you will not feel it incumbent upon you to discharge it in the neighborhood of my head?

B.—I perceive that the pillow is edged with lace. I promise you that I shall not disfigure the pillow in any way by establishing a connection between my pistol and your cranium.

H.—Then, Bill, I may sit up and regard you. Your figure is distinctly interesting. I notice you affect a mask.

B.—The night air, I assure you, sir, necessitates some such protection for a delicate complexion.

H.—Then, sir, your complexion matches the delicacy of your behavior. I am deeply touched.

B.—Not yet, but soon, I hope if I may venture upon such an overworked jest.

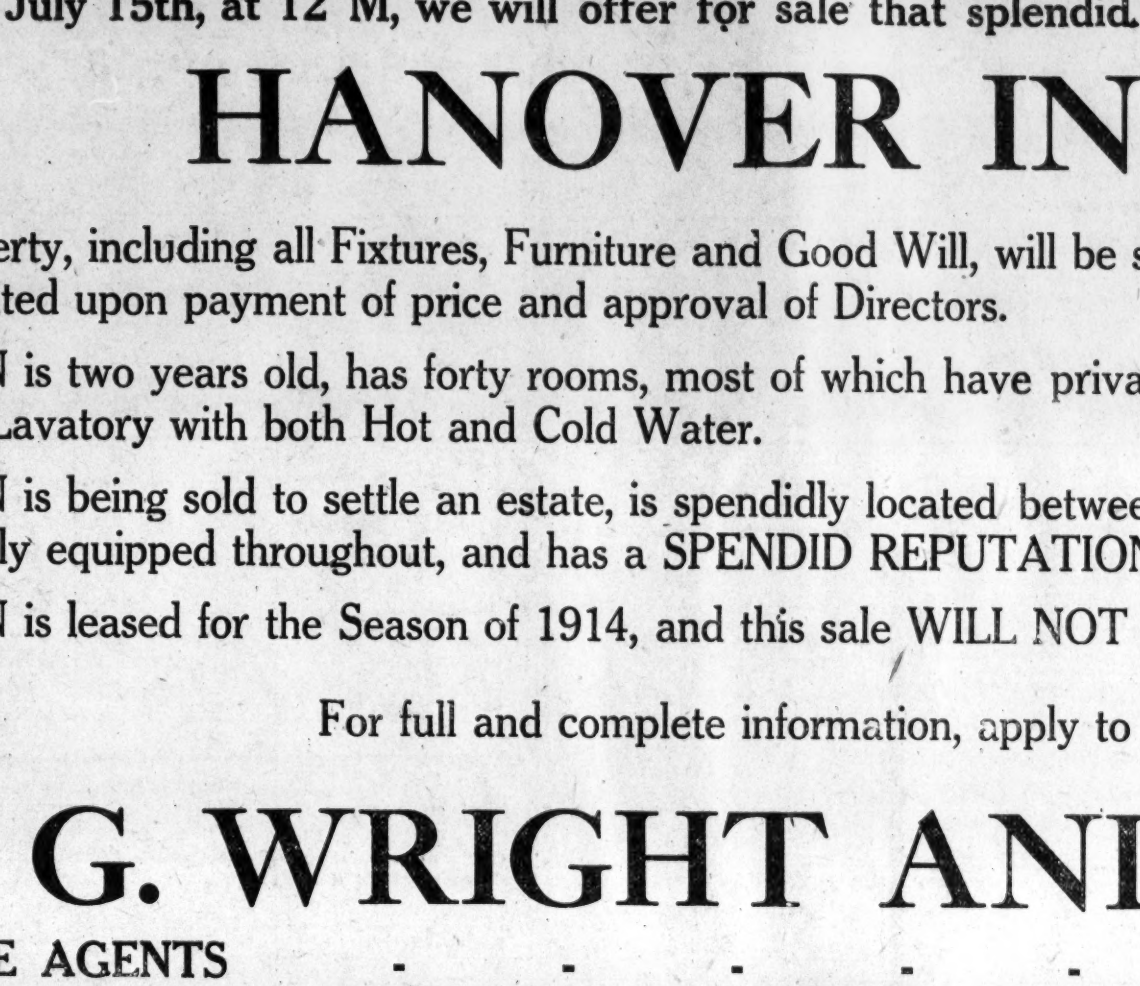
H.—Your humor is perfectly in tone. Might I inquire again—I fear my memory is very remiss—where we met before? I seem to recollect your voice.

B.—I would rather that you did not press the point. I am more desirous of oblivion than anything else. But come now, sir, I see that your eyes begin to tire. Might I suggest that you close them?

H.—Not at all. I have rarely felt so wide awake. Why need you go? Your company is more than refreshing.

B.—To tell you the truth, my dear sir, I am a slave to that tyrant of tyrants—duty. In half an hour it is my duty to be a mile from here.

H.—My automobile is at your service. Shall I press this bell and give instructions to the chauffeur and the footman?



THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

B.—Not for words! I should never forgive myself were I the innocent cause of rousing them from their well-earned slumbers. Pray dismiss the matter from your mind. As for myself, I shall never forget the kindness which prompted your offer.

H.—Then I can surely do something for you. Your profession is one which deserves encouragment. The stage encourages it. Why not as a private individual? Sir, if you will permit me to don my dressing-gown I will present you with a souvenir of your visit. Might I dare ask you to excuse me while I cross to my bureau and look in the top left hand drawer?

B.—Permit me. I should be sorry if you caught cold in the exercise of your hospitality. Do you refer to this brace of Colts which I find in the drawer? They seemed to be loaded. My solicitude for your welfare prompts me to withdraw their charges. I am sure that will be more satisfactory.

H.—Perfectly. I see there is no use concealing the fact that in a moment of forgetfulness I might have accidentally discharged them in your direction.

B.—Pooh, pooh, sir! You need not be ashamed of the sentiment. My own trigger-finger is sometimes irresponsive to the merciful promptings of my tender heart. I notice, however—you will pardon the necessity which impels me to do this—that you have also in the drawer a bank-roll, a box of what seems to be valuable jewels, and several trinkets.

H.—I must pray your instant acceptance of them all. Should you at any time find it incumbent upon you to repeat your visit, I shall make it a point to render your call more fruitful.

B.—Oh, please do not trouble! I would not dream of it. By-the-by, an idea has just occurred to me. I am afraid I shall have to bind you. Can you suggest any method which would not seriously inconvenience you?

H.—Dear me, my dear William! Do not bother. I shall be perfectly secure as I am.

B.—No trouble at all, I assure you. Perhaps if I were to tap you gently on the left temple you might sleep better. It was excessively inconsiderate of me not to do so before.

H.—It is rather difficult to do so, I think without under-estimating the strength of the blow, and I should hate to have anything done to me which would render you unhappy afterward.

B.—Quite so. Your thoughtfulness overwhelms me. Perhaps the sheet and the cord of your dressing-gown? Allow me. Thank you! And now this handkerchief in your mouth. Perfectly comfortable, I hope?

H.—Dmmm-mmm-mm—ch-ch-ch—mn——!

B.—Don't mention it. Good-night! I shall be careful as I think you are saying, to close the window after me. These night airs are so dangerous. Many thanks for your souvenirs. So glad to have met you! Good-night again, and happy dreams!

Miss Machiavelli

By Alice Grant Rosman

C Buck.

FIVE minutes after the girl's appearance on the beach the man crossed the esplanade and sauntered slowly toward her. The girl saw him and laughed to herself, half irritated and half amused, for he had done exactly the same thing a dozen times before, and she thought he was the most persistent and the least-enterprising person she had ever met.

The girl was rather experienced in flirtations, but she was not sure whether this could be brought under the same category as the rest. Privately and frankly she was beginning to hope not. For three weeks the man had paid her the same timeworn compliments and dogged her footsteps everywhere she went. Now as he came to her along the beach she thought she was surely clever enough to make things a little more definite and exciting. When he reached her, therefore, she was busy writing nothing in a picturesque note book and pretended not to notice him.

"Good morning," he said. "May I join you, or are you engaged?" A sudden daring thought entered the girl. "Oh, good morning," she said, "how quietly you came along. I am not engaged just at present, but I shall be"—taking out her watch—"in exactly half an hour from now."

"Then for that half an hour I may be permitted to live in the light of your smiles?" he suggested, flinging himself down beside her.

The girl grimaced.

"You have made that very interesting remark just sixteen times before," she admonished him. "You are not original, are you?"

He said originality was not compatible with his taste of mind, and the girl raised her pretty eyebrows.

"Isn't it?" she said innocently. "Why is that?"

"It is very simple," he said, leaning forward with a sentimental glance at her. "Would you like me to tell you why?"

She thought a moment.

"No," she decided encouragingly, "I don't think I should be in the least interested."

He smiled, understanding her for once.

"The fact is," he commenced, "that in your delightful presence, Miss Helen, I am so dazzled and illumined and all that sort of thing, don't you know, that——"

The girl put up a protesting hand, then laughed indulgently.

"Oh, well, I suppose I must allow you to go on," she said. "You won't be able to make all those pretty little speeches to me very much longer, you know."

"Why?" he asked quickly. "You are not going to leave us, surely? You are not going home?"

"No, I am not going—home." She was sure the little pause was most effective. "I'm——"

She had a letter from her father in her notebook, and just here she accidently dropped it, so that the man would have to pick it up. He did so and fell headlong into her trap.

"You don't mean you are going to be——" he said, with a jealous eye on the letter.

"Yes," she answered recklessly. "At least I am thinking about it."

And again her ruse succeeded.

"Oh, Miss Helen," he begged, "don't do it, whoever he is. Don't. You must know I care for you, and lately I had begun to hope you were growing to like me a little too. Believe me, I love you better than the whole world, and if you would only trust yourself to me, I swear I could make you happy."

"But——" commenced the girl.

"Ah, don't refuse me, Helen. Of course, I'm not good enough for you—who could be? But if you——"

"But——" repeated the girl diligently.

"At least hear me," he interrupted, and so she heard him. Two hours later he reminded her with an elaborate appearance of guilelessness that she had forgotten her engagement.

"What engagement?" she asked.

"Don't you remember, beloved, when I joined you, you said that you would be engaged in half an hour?"

The girl laughed and blushed prettily.

"Why, of course," she said. "I was a little out, wasn't I? As a matter of fact, it was only twenty minutes."

THE NEW ARITHMETIC.

My income is thirty-three hundred,
And this is the way it is spent:
Twelve hundred for eating and drinking and treating,
And nearly nine hundred for rent;
For dressing twelve hundred suffices,
Although that's a little bit small,
While servants high portions and doctor's extortions
Make up, say, a thousand in all.
We must go away in the summer,
And that costs eight hundred, let's say:
Five hundred will measure the money for pleasure,
Including the opera and play.
And then there's—but just stop a moment
Before I allow for my bets:
I've cited quite clearly six thousand, or nearly—
Well, most of it's paid for—in debts!

MURDOCK MacQUARRIE, OF UNIVERSAL, RANKS HIGH AS A CHARACTER ACTOR

MURDOCK MacQUARRIE in "THE OLD COBBLER"
(101 Bison—Universal)

Murdock MacQuarrie, of the Universal forces, holds prominent place in the front rank of screen character actors. Fourteen years ago he began to act before the camera, and since that time he has played leading parts in more than 500 pictures. Two qualities more than others compel interest in this actor. They are: The power in his personality and face, which makes possible the many virile characterizations he essays, and the decision in his acting. He is never at a loss to know exactly what business will be psychologically true to the situation in which he finds himself.

The Universal has just staged a play, "The Hopes of Blind Alley," with a leading role that enables Mr. MacQuarrie to give full play to his great power of character delineation as Jean Basse, a maker of statuettes, a grand old man who is everybody's friend in the little colony of people who live in the blind alley of the big city.

As the humorous and pathetic story goes, old Jean Basse makes a meager living for himself and granddaughter, Pauline, by peddling his miniature statuary. Pauline is in love with an unsuccessful artist who lives on the floor above. Every character who lives in the alley is shown, with his or her troubles and joys. Above everything else, it has been old Jean's ambition to possess a high silk hat. One day he receives a letter from an attorney advising him that he has fallen heir to the estate of a distant relative. It creates a commotion in the alley, because all think that they are going to lose Jean. But in his heart the good old man decides that he will divide his wealth with his friends. On the strength of the legacy Jean buys a handsome silk stovepipe hat. It is a proud day for him when he strolls into Blind Alley thus spruced up.

The attorney calls for him the next day and leads him to his inheritance, the contents of a small cottage. But everything had been attached by creditors save a few odds and ends in the attic. The only thing he considered worth taking home was a dust-covered painting.

Jean, feeling that he cannot now afford the silk hat, sadly sells it back to the haberdasher. Jean's homecoming is not as sad as might be supposed, for his friends rejoice that their little colony will not lose him.

However, the old man's legacy is worth more than he at first realized. The artist, Pauline's lover, no sooner sets eyes on the old painting than he declares it to be an original Van Dyke. Jean takes the painting to a successful artist, who attempts to buy it for $2. Jean, however, refuses the offer. The famous artist then tries to steal the masterpiece. Failing in this attempt, he tries to mislead Jean by admiring Pauline. But all his schemes are defeated. Pauline's sweetheart begins selling his pictures, and on the day they were married, the couple presents Jean with a silk hat. But for the old man the end has come; he lies sick unto death. As a wedding gift, he gives Pauline the painting, and as his life flickers away he insists on wearing the silk hat.

A VERSATILE MOVIE STAR

DONALD CRISP Majestic Actor and Director.

Donald Crisp, actor and director with the Reliance Stock company, is extremely versatile, as his work as Bull McGee in "The Escape" and in an entirely different character in "Home, Sweet Home," shows. He plays anything from the youthful juvenile to the villain, makes a good western sheriff or a convincing sailor or society man.

Mr. Crisp was for some years with Cohan & Harris, appearing in "The Yankee Prince," "The Little Millionaire" and other successes. He worked under D. W. Griffith with the Biograph company before joining the Reliance. "The Newer Woman" and "The Tavern of Tragedy" are two Mutual Movies he has produced.

Flashes On The Screen

"The Crash," a one-reel comedy, is the first to be produced by George Nichols, for nine months prominent director with the Keystone Company, who recently joined the Universal-Sterling Company to direct a third producing company. While the piece is in one reel, there is enough action, enough sensational stunts "put over," and, above all, enough real comedy in it to make a bouncing two-reel.

Lean Baird has forsaken the ranks of the Universal and is now en route to join her old lover, the Vitagraph, which concern was the first to paste Leah's name all over the country.

And now comes the flash that Mary Fuller, who "just grew up" with the Edison Company, has left them to form a company of her own. Her plays will be put out with a Universal stamp on them.

The Beauty Company, with that charming little artist, Margerita Fischer, twinkling, is living up to its reputation in their latest success, "The Tale of a Tailor." It is funny, realistic and artistic, to say the least.

The sensational comedy success, "Seven Days," which had a record-breaking run in four hundred and two consecutive performances at the Astor Theatre in New York, is now being released by the Klaw and Erlanger Company.

That delightful little creature, Myrtle Stedman, who is doing leads in Jack London's plays, used to be an opera singer. Some people do go from one extreme to the other—laughter, sadness, anger, despair, noise, silence.

Oh, rats! And Grace Cunard absolutely refuses to play in a scene with them. Therefore certain portions of that "Bucille" series are being conformed to meet with her requirements.

"The Love Victorious" is the title of an allegorcal drama upon which Director Wilfred Lucas of the Powers Company, Universal, is now working. The story deals with the life of Woman, her trials, temptations, and sinning. Her acceptance of Evil and its cohorts as positive forces in her life and the final struggle of sin and the Christ-spirit for possession of her soul.

If that "Cabiria" ever finishes its run at the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York it will go direct to Baltimore. And while this production is being shown to overfilled houses at every performance, the management of the Knickerbocker are sadly recalling that they rented the theatre to Werba and Leuscher without commission!

Headed by Alexander Gaden, Ruth Donnelly and Dorothy Phillips, the Imp Company, under the direction of Frank Crane, S. P. D. (Soft Pedal Director), have just returned to New York from Twin Island, where they have been spending the last two weeks producing a two-reel melodrama, "The Lady of the Island."

J., the other day when he heard that the ex-President had been approached and was considering being photographed by the movies, at his home in Oyster Bay this summer.

"There'd be one consolation," added the postmaster. "It'd stop his talkin'."

"That's all rite," said Farmer Smith. "But, suppose they were talkin' pitchers!"

AT THE Y. W. C. A.

My dear Girls:

I failed to get a letter to you last week. The Association was visited last week by fifty-one people, one week before by one hundred, besides all the hundreds of men, women and girls who came to the House-warming.

This week Monday I had a visit from six of the girls from the Girls' Friendly. They told me all about their beautiful work, and I was very much interested. They promised to come some night in a body and escort me out to one of their meetings. I told them all about the Camp Fire girls. If you will come to see me, I will tell you, also.

On Tuesday night we had the loveliest party. Mrs. James invited the girls in the printing offices. They came—thirty of them. We had songs and funny stories, music on the Victrola and on the piano. We actually forgot we were grown ups and went out into the back yard and played "Going to Jerusalem." The one left out in the game each time had to cut a cake in which were a ring, a thimble and a dime. If you could have heard our screams of laughter, you would not have asked if we were having a good time.

I told the girls about the club that we are going to organize. You know a secretary depends upon the business girls to make things go. You do so much to help in the canvass for members. So I am expecting great things from you. Girls all over the world are organizing themselves into group clubs, each club having a stated purpose. For instance one club has this purpose, stated in its constitution. "It is the purpose of this club to help the Genileges." Another has this: "It is the fellowship and loyalty among its ileges." Another has this: "It is the purpose of this club to do some form of social service." Another, this: "It is the purpose of this club to promote fellowship and loyalty among its members."

Each club is self-governing, having its own officers, choosing its own name and its own form of activity. If you are interested in being a charter member of this club, come Thursday night at eight o'clock. Come whether you are a clerk, an office girl, a teacher, a nurse, a type-setter, a seamstress, a girl in the telephone exchange, in the laundry; no matter what you are doing. Come!

Remember, now, girls, I am depending upon you. I have not been lonely but one day since I came to Wilmington. That was last Friday. I did not have a call all afternoon, but I called "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Mrs. Wiggs is a special friend of mine I fairly love her. If you do not know her, it will give me great pleasure to introduce her. Imagine me lonely and hot, to have Mrs. Wiggs to come in and say: "My, but it's nice and cold this afternoon. The thermometer's done fell up to zero." Don't you suppose I forgot the fact that I'd been suffering all day with the heat?

Don't you know she left me in a happy frame of mind? The last thing she said was: "An' they're goin' to git married an' Billy's got promoted, an' Asia's got a place, an' Chris'll have a new peg-stick. Looks like ever'thing in the world comes right if we jes' wait long enough."

I have a number of friends that I'd like to introduce you to. Come to see me, girls!

Yours sincerely,

ELLA A. CLARK.

"THE SOUTHERN LAWYER AND HIS OPPORTUNITIES"

Address of Hon. A. L. Brooks, of Greensboro, Before the North Carolina Bar Association at Wrightsville July 1st, in Which He Holds Up High Standards for Members of the Legal Profession

"The Southern Lawyer, His Traditions and Opportunities" was the subject of an able address by Hon. A. L. Brooks, of Greensboro, before the North Carolina Bar Association on Wednesday morning, July 1, at Wrightsville Beach. Giving in brief compass the important part that the members of the legal profession have taken in the formation and development of the American government, showing by the many high positions in public life that are held by Southern lawyers of today that this high place is being maintained and portrayed vividly the splendid opportunities open to Southern lawyers in the future growth and expansion of the South, the address is remarkable for its clear grasp of thought and its comprehensive outline of the important facts of American history. The address in full is as follows:

"The true lawyer, wherever found, is always a useful citizen, and an ornament to the community in which he lives. The Southern lawyer for more than a century has justified this estimate. The people of the South have universally entertained a high regard for the legal profession, close akin to that for the ministry, and have given to it their strongest sons. A profession thus filled by the flower of the South's intellectual manhood and stimulated and sustained by a high and enlightened public opinion could not fail to make a profound impression upon the State and Nation in which its activities were employed.

"In viewing the traditions of the Southern bar we of today are dazzled by its achievements and stimulated by its example. Beginning with the Continental Congress there has never been an assemblage of American citizens looking to the framing of constitutions, making of laws or interpreting these constitutions and laws that the Southern lawyer has not taken a leading and conspicuous part. So profound and illuminating has been the intellectual grasp of some of our Southern lawyers in statesmanship and judicial learning that their names and fame are reverred wherever mankind is seeking through the operation of law to better his condition. Surely it will not be amiss for me here to call attention to a few conspicuous examples to illustrate this truth, without in the least detracting from the worthy achievements if their numerous brethren who co-operate with them in their labors.

Southern Lawyers in History.

"When it became necessary for the American colonies to declare their independence of Great Britain, it was a Southern lawyer—Thomas Jefferson—who penned this great declaration, a declaration which has ever since not only been the touchstone of American freedom, but has proven to be a torchlight of liberty for struggling humanity throughout the world. It remains unto this day the most powerful indictment ever penned against the tyranny of kings and the rule of aristocracy.

"When it became necessary to arouse the colonist to a full appreciation of its meaning, it was the tongue of a Southern lawyer—Patrick Henry—who set the people's hearts afire with his intense human interpretation of the meaning of this declaration.

"When freedom was won, the union formed and a constitution adopted, it was a Southern lawyer—John Marshall—who as chief justice of the constitution gave a dignity, power and importance to that court unequalled by the judicial tribunal of any other people on earth.

"When later in our countrys' history perils arose which threatened its very existence, and a chief executive was needed to stay the hand of a despoiler, and grapple with wanton privilege and power, the nation again took a Southern lawyer, and a native North Carolinian—Andrew Jackson—and made him President of the United States. How well he saved the nation from the money power and restored the government into the hands of the people is now eloquently told biennially by the leaders of all political parties.

Towering Legal Intellects.

"Recurring for a moment to an unpleasant chapter in our country's history, when civil strife tore the nation asunder, let me in justice to truth mention in this connection the name of a Southern lawyer, who was for more than thirty years the unequaled champion of State's rights and the South's contention that under the constitution a sovereign State had the right to secede from the union; a legal truism so ably and successfully maintained by John C. Calhoun on the floor of the United States Senate against all comers that it could only be answered by bullets. It has been said of Calhoun that so exact and cruel was his logic and powerful his argument that once his opponent admitted the correctness of his premises, defeat in debate was inevitable.

"Another towering legal intellect associated with this period, worthy of mention in this connection, was Juda P. Benjamin. Mr. Benjamin spent many years of his youth with his parents in Eastern North Carolina, later removing to New Orleans. He held in the Confederate cabinet successively and successfully the portfolio of Secretary of War, Attorney General and Secretary of State. After the fall of the Confederacy he became a fugitive from his home land, but his splendid talents won for him in his adopted land the exalted position of counsel to the Queen of England.

"There were also three other notably distinguished lawyers of this period—George Davis, of North Carolina, and Robert Toombs and Alexander Stephens, of Georgia.

"Following the unhappy years of reconstruction in the South, several distinguished Southern lawyers acquired national fame. Chief among them perhaps were Lamar, of Mississippi; Morgan, of Alabama, and Carlyle, of Kentucky, the latter of whom it is said that, in Congress in 1873 he made so powerful an argument advocating the free and unlimited coinage of silver, that afterwards in 1896 he was the only lawyer in the United States to be found who could answer his own previous arguments. It is to be hoped that he did this to his own satisfaction.

No Decadence in Profession.

"The opinion has been expressed by some thoughtful students of legal history that there is a decadence in the Southern bar of today. I doubt if a close analysis will bear out this conclusion. The practice of law in late years has undoubtedly become more commercialized, and like all the professions it has suffered from the apparent universal craze among the people to make money, and alluring financial offers from 'big business' has often taken from the profession some of its most distinguished members. This influence of money, however, to my mind has been more baneful to the lawyer in politics than the lawyer at the bar. Be it said to the everlasting credit of the Southern lawyer that no case is recorded where any leading member of our profession has ever prostituted his trust to a client for money.

I do not believe that there is less ability and learning among the Southern lawyers today than formerly. I do not know that there are more ill-prepared and incompetent men at the bar, which may tend to reduce the average.

Review of Southern Bar

"Let us by way of comparison and illustration take a brief review of the Southern bar of today: But recently when it became necessary for President Taft to appoint a Chief Justice of the United Sates he selected a Southern lawyer, Justice White, and although belonging to an opposition political party, and being an ex-Confederate soldier, he was placed at the head of this great Court. More recently the same President selected two other eminent lawyers from the Southern bar and bench for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States Justices Lamar and Lurton.

"As was the case in the days of Andrew Jackson, when the Union found itself in need of a statesman and lawyer to direct its affairs, Woodrow Wilson, a Southern lawyer by birth, training and environment, was elected President of the United States In making up his cabinet the learning and ability of Southern trained law- by the President in the appointment of McReynolds, Attorney General, McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasurer, Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and Burleson, Postmaster General. It is doubtful if at any single period in the South's history during the past the Southern bar has furnished more distinguished members for national service, both upon the bench and in the counsels of state, than at present.

"Aside from the high position now held by the Southern lawyers already named, we have reason to be proud of North Carolina's contribution to this distinguished company. The acting Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate is a North Carolina lawyer-Senator Overman; the Chairman of the great Finance Committee, which took part in framing the present tariff bill, is a North Carolina lawyer-Senator Simmons; the prospective leader of the United States Congress is a North Carolina lawyer—Mr. Kitchin, and the present Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House is a North Carolina lawyer—Mr. Webb.

"Is a further proof necessary to establish the fact that the apostle of decadence of the Southern bar is a pessimist? Such a record of achievement on the part of the Southern bar could not have been made except through the influence of deep underlying causes peculiar to the South, which must be accounted for.

South Genuinely American

"This nation has the best average citizenship in the world, and the South is by far the most genuinely American section of the nation. The South, heretofore, and now, has fewer undesirable aliens, fewer socialists, fewer anarchists, fewer labor troubles, less poverty and less arrogant wealth than any other section of our great country. These are some of the evils that the South so far has escaped. As a result of the absence of these penalities, and from other causes, virtues innumerable have flourished in our Southland, and have reflected its glory in our bar. The climate and environment has had much to do in shaping the character and aspirations of the Southern lawyer. Without undue praise it may be said that history does not record a race of men with finer abilities, higher ideals, nobler purposes and truer patriotism than the men of the South for the last century. Born of such a race, and influenced by such a society, the learned profession to which we belong should number in its ranks many great oaks in the forest of intellect and power. This heritage we should ever use for the benefit of society and government, both of which are dependent upon a country's laws and its administration.

"I beg to quote in this connction one of America's greatest lawyers, who said:

"Let us remember the trust, the sacred trust, attaching to the rich inheritance which we have received from our fathers. Let us feel our personal responsibility to the full extent of our power and influence for the preservation of the principles of civil and religious liberty; and let us remember that it is only religion and morals, and knowledge, that can make men respectable and happy, under any form of government. Let us hold fast the great truth, that communities are responsible, as well as individuals; that no government is respectable which is not just; that without unspotted purity of public faith, without sacred public principle, fidelity and honor, no mere forms of government, no machinery of laws, can give dignity to political society. In our day and generation let us seek to raise and improve the moral sentiment, so that we may look—not for a degraded—but for an elevated and improved future."

Opportunities for Service

"What of the Southern lawyer's opportunities for the future? The law and the prophets have always been linked together, so I feel justified in prophesying. To the extent that we appreciate what it costs to make these glorious traditions of our profession, just to that extent can we appreciate our opportunities for the future. It has been said that the law is a jealous mistress. Yes, it is more. The mistress may be content with single-hearted devotion to her, while the law demands this for its own sake, and also demands that you shall give greatly of your own talents and wisdom to the uplift of State and society. You shall not only render unto the law that which is the law's but you shall render unto society the influence of your rarest gifts. At most we are trustees to whom are given in varying instances many talents. How shall we use them? The Creator of man has twice found it necessary when his people were in distress to give them a leader possessed of divine knowledge, and make these leaders law givers. The first—Moses—actually wrote the law himself, and the second—Jesus—taught the law. The Christian nations of the earth have built their state laws upon the teachings of these two law givers. The first consideration of the lawyer's opportunities in the practice of his profession shall be the inquiry, "Does he himself obey the law which he teaches to and practices for others?" If not, his opportunities are limited, and his influence crippled. I maintain that no judge upon the bench, or lawyer at the bar, can expound the law with power and lasting conviction who himself is at enmity with the law, and in private life is violating its most sacred tenets. The Lord High Chancellor of Great Brition, Haldane, in discussing a kindred subject, has well said:

"The moral of the whole story is the hopelessness of attempting to study Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence apart from the history of its growth and of the character of the judge who created it. To know the principles of equity is to know the history of the courts in which it has been administered.

Lawyers Position in Society

"In other words, there is no great opportunity for the lawyer or judge, in the sense in which it is here employed, who does not love the law for the law's sake, and who does not also delight in its just administration.

"It is difficult to fully estimate the opportunity of a true lawyer. In the legislative hall his judgment dictates and his pen reduces to form nearly every important act. To his brethren upon the bench is exclusively confided the power to interpret every law that the sovereign people write, or ever will write. Into his hands is placed the duty of protecting and defending the personal and property rights of every litigant in the courts. Finally, into his office comes the prudent husbandman, who confides to his attorney the drafting of his last will and testament. Thus, his position in society is such that he may become a tower of strength, protecting and defending the rights of the people, and building up and ennobling all the worthy undertakings of his State.

An Economic Evolution

"The economic and governmental status of the Southern States is today passing through the most rapid evolution ever known in times of peace. We sometimes speak of it as the "New South". But this is a misnomer. It is the Old South set free, freed from the blighting influence of a landed aristocracy; freed from a sectional seclusiveness. She presents to mankind a combination of the most fertile fields, abundant forests, rich mines, healthful climate and worthy people that the world has ever known. Its material development for the next decade no man can mistake. Its entire fabric, social, political and industrial, must be adapted to these rapidly changing conditions. Its relations are no longer sectional, or even national, but world-wide. To the Southern lawyer more than to any other profession of men is the duty imposed of safely directing this dynamic force. To him will be confided the difficult task of broadening the foundations of our institutions through the operation of law, so as to amply support the great weight of these new social and industrial superstructures. What an opportunity, and yet what a responsibility, for whatever the changes may be, or the demands that are to be made, at all hazards, and at any cost, we must preserve the four corner stones upon which the South founded her society, viz., respect for the home, respect for the church, respect for the courts, and respects for ourselves.

Three Epochs of History

"The American lawyer has had to deal with three distinct epochs in our nation's history. The first period was devoted to adopting a national and state constitutions, and preparing suitable laws for the government of our newly established institutions. The second period was devoted to interpreting and construing these constitutions and laws in the light of the spirit and purpose of those who originally wrote them. The first of these undertakings was constructive statesmanship, and the lawyer stood out in this field of endeavor as a conspicuous leader. The second period, to-wit, the construction and interpretation of the constitution and laws, was essentially technical, and while the profession and the courts were devoting their energies to the refinements and the refining of the law, the enterprising business world around about us forged anead in the development of the nation's resources, and in the construction of colossal business and corporation enterprises, the existence and operation of which has forced a third epoch in our nation's life. This epoch may be properly defined as the reconstruction of our constitution and laws so as to bring the administration of justice abreast with the changed conditions of our nation's life, and give to them a vivifying potentiality.

The viewpoint of this problem of re-writing our constitution and laws in the South is different from that which obtains in most other sections of the nation. With them it is largely a question of changing their constitution and laws so as to get away from present conditions, while we of the South would make such changes as will enable us to meet and deal successfully with new problems but preserve our present conditions. To illustrate: The South is adopting the legalized primary laws, not, as some other sections, to get rid of corporation controlled courts and subsidized legislators, but to prevent these conditions. It is well that the Southern lawyers should look to the future of his land, for with the tide of immigration and wealth to the South will come also the exploiter and the corruptionist. Your opportunity and duty, therefore, is for the home and state builder, to make this South land a new Eden, and for the exploiter and corruptionist to make it a barren desert.

Lawyers Must Study

"To meet these responsibilities and to embrace these opportunities the Southern lawyer must ever be a thoughtful student of the affairs of men and government throughout the world.

A lawyer without history or literature, says Sir Walter Scott, "is a mechanic, a mere working mason; if he possesses some knowledge of these, he may venture to call himself an architect.

"It has been happily said that the law embodies the story of a nation's development through many centuries, and it can not be dealt with as if it contained only the axioms and corallaries for a book of mathematics.

"A distinguished lawyer in an able address before the American Bar Association some years ago very aptly said:

"'The legal mind is something more than a store house for so-called legal lore—something more than an index to cases—something more than a pigeon hole for court files. Legal lore on analysis will be found to be all lore. A man can memorize statutes, formulas, precedents, and yet know no law. For law is not simply the latest guess of a Supreme Court; a good lawyer may sometimes prevail upon that tribunal to guess again. Law is that rule of action that must prevail if justice itself is to prevail, and he is the greatest lawyer who, in the light of the greatest knowledge of whatever is knowledge, most clearly perceives the just principles and most persuasively advacates it. I would almost affirm that the legal mind is the scientific mind with an ethical kink in it.'

"The lawyer's success, more perhaps than that of any other profession, is measured by his intellectual attainments, rather than by his financial accumulation. I believe it to be a truth supported by history that no man can be an ideal citizen who estimates either his own or another's success by the money he accumulates and this is true four-fold of the lawyer. Let him acquire learning, love justice, be faithful, and all things else will be added unto him.

A Gentlemen's Calling

"The legal calling is essentially a calling for gentlemen, and aside from every other consideration it pays to be a gentleman if you can. Once an old time Lord Chancellor was asked how he made his selection from the ranks of the barristers when he was called upon to name a new Judge. He answered: 'I always appoint a gentleman, and if he knows a little law, so much the better'. This test was not as rash as it at first appears, since the requirements of a gentleman are culture, courtesy and self-restraint, and there is no profession that both requires and develops these qualities as does the law.

"The evolution of the law during the last century has been great, but the evolution in the layman's mind with relation to the law and the lawyer has been far greater. The people no longer regard the bench as a sacred institution commanding respect and reverence under all circumstances, nor do they regard the profession of law as a semi-divine calling, in which men do no wrong. Whether we appreciate or not the changing attitude of the public, we must accept it and strive the harder to preserve the traditions of the profession, and what is more, so act and live as to continue to earn and command the respect and admiration of an intelligent and educated people.

"There must be a cross fertilization of thought with all the great minds of the earth if the problems of statesmanship and law administration are to be dealt with and solved wisely and well. (In this noble undertaking there is no place for the trickster, the time-server, or the commercialist.) The storehouse of knowledge has always been severely closed to the timid, the weak and the vacillating seeker after knowledge. Neither will the strong-minded break down its barriers and become possessed of its wonderful riches, except through relentless and untiring labor, and application. Let it not be forgotten that a familiar acquaintance with, and a knowledge of all the sciences and arts of men will sometimes be of profit to the ambitious lawyer. Daniel Webster, after delivering his now famous speech in reply to Senator Hayne, when asked by an admiring friend how he had managed to prepare this great speech in so short a tme, answered: 'I have been twenty years preparing that speech.'

"Today we stand upon the threshold of the South's la... best future, inspired by splendid tr.. itions and encouraged by the charact.. and fortitude of a people who have withstood alike the baneful influence of the pleasures of peace and the ravages of war.

Bright Future Portrayed

"Unless I mistake the signs of the times, the South is destined not only to be an imperial empire within herself, but to demonstrate to the world that her love of nation is as great as her love of state, and that she stands ready to defend the constitution of our fathers, or to write a new one should human rights and human liberties demand it. In this field of ever increasing opportunities and great responsibilities I predict the Southern lawyer will always be found in the front ranks of his fellow-countrymen, and continue to add lustre to his profession and reknown to his name.

"Behold a Southern bar of gentlemen, well-educated, consecrated to the law, animated by a love of justice and inspired by the splendid traditions exemplified in the profession by the philosophy and statesmanship of Thos. Jefferson, the eloquence of Patrick Henry, the judicial learning of John Marshall, the equity of Thos. Ruffin, the rugged determination of Andrew Jackson, the logic of John C. Calhoun, the sympathy with mankind of Zeb Vance, and the scolarship and diplomacy of Woodrow Wilson.

Master of human destinies am I;
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait,
Cities and fields I walk. I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and, passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate.
If sleeping, wake—if feasting, rise before
I turn away! It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every State
Morals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death. But those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury and woe
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore;
I answer not, and I return no more."

MISSION CAUSE IN AMERICA IS EMBARRASSED FOR FUNDS

Dr. Egbert W. Smith, of Southern Presbyterian Board, Gives Interesting Figures—Each of the Great Mission Boards Labors Under Handicap of Large Deficit—Call for Greater Efforts—Populous Section of China That is Without Missionary Worker—How the Balkan Christians Stand the Test.

By Ida Clyde Clarke

"Our hope for the future is not in a more powerful and convincing statement of the opportunity and the need, but in a more vital faith in the Gospel of Christ, on the part of the churches who do, or who might, support the missionary work."

Dr. Egbert W. Smith, executive secretary of the board of missions of the Southern Presbyterian church, has prepared a statement concerning the financial condition of the boards of the different churches, which shows that every board has a deficit of several thousand dollars. In speaking of the figures, Dr. Smith said:

"Whatever the explanation, the foreign mission cause in this country is suffering from a serious and widespread financial embarrassment."

The statement follows:

The Northern Presbyterian foreign mission board is in debt nearly $300,000.

The United Presbyterian board has a debt of over $160,000.

The Northern Baptist board reports a deficit of $182,000.

The Southern Baptist board is behind $68,000.

The Southern Methodist board has a debt of $175,000.

The Episcopal board, whose year is not yet closed, has issued a statement to the effect that a shortage of $300,000 is imminent.

The Southern Presbyterian committee's debt is $36,000.

The great American board, Congregational, organized in 1810, reports the last year as the hardest in its history.

Certainly, this great emphasis of the need is a commanding call to the church people everywhere to more consecrated and more effective work for the cause of missions.

A Large and Needy Field.

Shensi is the province lying west of Shansi, with the Chinese wall on the north. It is very rich in natural resources, the greatest coal, iron and petroleum field in Asia. The north section of the province, larger than the State of Massachusetts, contains a population of several millions, without missionary work of any kind.

That 1,900 years after Christ such a populous region should remain without the Gospel is a fact Christian people cannot contemplate with complacency.

But at last the night breaks in. The American board is asked by the all-China committee on comity to assume responsibility for evangelizing this region, and a promise of $1,000 per year from a Boston business man makes possible the opening of a great new work, Rev. Watts O. Pye, of Fenchow, describes how they will apply this gift.

"It has seemed almost as though God had reached down and by one movement arranged to meet the call which has these past months been pressing down so heavily upon us, and we had not been able to see any possible way out of our difficulties in meeting it. There are ten walled cities in the territory, of prefectural or su-prefectural rank, in not one of which is there at present a Christian as a Christian worker. It would be an inspiring thing to be able to put two men in each of these great centers to care for the district in which they are situated. We are much in prayer that this may work out so."

Balkan Christians Stand the Test.

A letter has just come from Rev. W. Cooper, of Salonica, Greece, telling in detail of relief work in Macedonia during the winter. He also writes of the terrible slaughter of non-combatants which took place in city and village between and after the two wars. His description of the fiendish acts of cruelty displayed in certain quarters makes sad reading. The one bright spot is the way most of the Protestant Christians bore themselves throughout. He says:

"As for pillage, one might truthfully say that the people took part in it almost universally. Almost the only people who did not kill or steal were our Protestant Christians. I myself saw last summer apparently whole villages hauling plunder in ox carts from deserted Turkish houses and rejoiced to know that in these same villages our people stood true to righteousness in spite of the solicitations of their neighbors.

"True it is, that 11 of our 239 communicants in this plain took part in plundering, much to our shame and sorrow, but we rejoice in the 228 who withstood temptation.

"Those who sinned were disciplined and we have reason to believe that no stolen goods are now in their possession, they having returned same where the owners could be found, and paid into the relief fund for the things which had no owner. Some lost their stolen goods immediately, they being taken from them by stronger thieves. The public discipline which we gave will, I am sure, be a lesson in ethics to many both inside and outside the church.

"Moral principles are pretty much beclouded in the minds of these people. Twenty years of organized brigandage in the name of liberty have not served to purify the moral atmosphere.

"The saddest case was that of one man who went, with a group of plunderers, and was present, giving consent, when three men were murdered. He seems really penitent, but I felt myself unable to decide whether to take him back without his doing something for the widows and orphans, and we laid his case over for consultation with other missionaries."

Missions and the Fiji Islands.

Out of a population of about 90,000 in the Fiji Islands, over 83,000 are reported as claiming attachment to some Christian church. The missionary contributions last year aggregated over $50,000, and, in addition to this amount, much was given for the payment of native teachers and the maintenance of native churches. When missionary work was begun in these islands, in 1835, the whole Fijian race was sunk into the deepest and most degraded form of heathenism. Cannibalism was a common practice, and the most horrible cruelty was rampant. The sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, has proven effectual to a remarkable degree.

They report 981 Sunday schools. In outright gifts to missions, not considering endowment, our swarthy-skinned brethren of the South seas, in their infancy as Christian folk, have far outstripped us in the "unspeakable gift."

Lace Making and Christianity.

Miss Margaret A. Frame writes from Tengchow, China:

"Some benevolent Chinese have opened a school where the little girls may study, forenoons, and learn lace-making in the afternoon. The little girls are not especially well-to-do, but they all come from old, responsible families to which foreigners have previously had no access.

"The teacher of lace making is a Christian, and our relations to the pupils have made it possible for us to visit in any of the 16 or 18 homes, and in several the Christian teacher has found them very willing to listen to direct teaching about Christ and the faith of Christianity.

New Sayles in China.

Mrs. Mabel Hall Thompson, Tsinging, China, writes:

"Our woman's conference was, to some 130 countrywomen, a great step forward into a realization of their own importance in the world. It was indeed a pleasure to see the smiling faces of their men folk—those who were fortunate enough to attend some of these meetings—as their wives or daughters took their places on the platform or spoke from the pew on subjects which had suddenly vitally interested them, such as "Evils of Anger," which sin caused so much sickness, suicide, etc., in their homes; "Marriage Engagements," in heathen families, from which there is no release, even though their hearts may break at the thought of the life ahead of their child who was engaged in infancy; "Foot Binding," from which they suffer pain and humiliation.

"We believe that the next generation of women in the Tsining district will see this abominable evil almost entirely wiped out, especially since it has become known that the new style of 'republican foot dress' in the capital—Tsinanfu—is the dainty little slipper worn on the unbound foot, among the ladies of official rank."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For July 12, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Mark x, 32-45 Memory Verses, 43-45—Golden Text Mark x, 45—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The first part of this lesson concerning His death and resurrection is recorded in Matthew, Mark and Luke, but the second part, concerning the request of James and John and their mother, in Matthew and Mark only. The words "in the way" of verses 17, 32, 52; xi, 8; Acts ix, 2, 17, 27, and elsewhere, while they may generally mean nothing more than on the road, are suggestive of Ps. i, 6; cxix, 1; John xiv, 6, and make one think of the way of peace, the way of the Lord (Luke i, 79; iii, 4), and of what it really means, to follow Him in the way.

This is the third time that He spoke plainly of His sufferings and death and resurrection; but, although His words seem so plain to us, they understood none of these things (Luke xviii, 34), because they knew not the Scriptures concerning His death and resurrection (John xx, 9), having their own thoughts about the kingdom, just as many today know nothing of the second coming of Christ, the distinction between the church of the present age and the kingdom of the next age and the ages to come, because they will not take heed to what is written in the prophets concerning the Son of Man and the kingdom to be set up at His coming in glory to judge the nations and to reign in righteousness (Isa. xxxii, 1, 17; xxxiv, 8; xxxv, 4, 10), but persist in thinking that the kingdom is within us and that all that the great work of redemption is for is to deliver people from hell and get them to heaven.

This is the age of a kingdom postponed because of a rejected Christ and of gathering out from all nations a people to reign with Him, but who must be content now to suffer with Him, live separate from this present evil age, not conformed to it, but so manifesting in it the meekness, lowliness and love of Christ that we shall show something of His life in these mortal bodies and win people to Him. The Holy Spirit has been given especially in this age to testify of a crucified, risen and ascended Christ, who is waiting at the Father's right hand until the number of His elect, waiting, suffering ones, shall have been completed, when He will take us to Himself, reward us for service, appoint our places in His kingdom and bring us back with Him to reign (Acts xvi, 13-18; Thess. iv, 16-18; Col. iii, 4; Rev. v, 9, 10). This is no time for a believer to be seeking great things for himself or his church or his denomination or society or in any way to make himself a name, but with all lowliness and meekness and long suffering and patience walk worthy of Him who has called us unto His kingdom and glory (Eph. iv, 1, 2; Col. i, 10, 11; I Thess. ii, 12), who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many (verse 45).

Even Jeremiah in his day said to his scribe Baruch, "Seekest thou great things for thyself, seek them not" (Jer. xiv, 5). As it is a case of self or the Lord and cannot be both, we must persist in attaining to the fullness of the experience of "Not I, but Christ who liveth in me;" "Not I, but the grace of God;" "In newness of life, dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord;" "Delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh;" "Risen with Christ and setting our affection on things above" (Gal. ii, 20; Cor. xv, 10; Rom. vi, 4, 11; II Cor. iv, 10, 11; Col. iii, 1-4).

Neither James nor John nor their mother seemed to understand when they came seeking preferment in the kingdom, and it did seem so out of place when He had just been speaking of His own sufferings and death. Even on the last night, at the passover, as he spoke of one of them betraying Him, they were striving as to which of them should be the greatest, giving Him occasion to say, "I am among you as he that serveth" (Luke xxii, 21-27). No teacher of man was ever so lonely, misunderstood or unappreciated. There is such a depth of meaning in His words, "No man knoweth the Son but the Father" (Matt. xi, 27); "I live by the Father" (John vi, 57). He spoke of the cup given Him to drink and the baptism of suffering which awaited Him and asked if they could share it, and they thought that their devotion to Him was such that they could share anything with Him, even to dying with Him, as Peter said (John xiii, 37).

They did not understand. How could they when they were so dull as not to receive His plain words about His own dying? And when he was arrested that last night and was about to be bound and led away as a prisoner Peter would have delivered Him by his sword if he could.

Oh, how little we understand of what it means to follow Him, to manifest His life, to bear the burden of the meek and lowly One, who, when He was reviled, reviled not again; when He suffered He threatened not, leaving us an example that we should follow His steps (I Pet. ii, 21-23). When people sing, "Surely the captain may depend on me," "Fade, each earthly joy," "Thou, O Christ, art all I want," and other similar words they do not often consider what they are saying, nor to whom they are saying these words, nor how it would be if the test came.

CORN SHOW THIS FALL WILL ATTRACT MANY

Many Entrants From Several Counties Announced.

Under Tent at Winoca Terrace—Mr. L. B. Sasser Talks Interestingly of Coming Event at Wilmington—Prizes.

With many new and interesting features, including speakers on agricultural topics, poultry and canned goods exhibits, along with the usual and attractive variety of farm products, the Corn Show for next November promises to outclass anything of the kind ever arranged in this section and the contestants for the various prizes in New Hanover and surrounding counties are displaying unusual enthusiasm over the outcime.

Mr. L. B. Sasser, the prime mover in last year's successful exhibit, is enthusiastic over the prospects for the coming show and announced yesterday a registration of 112 names in the corn contest, which always proves a most conspicuous and beneficial feature.

Co-operative effort is elicited in making the Corn Show the success it deserves. In announcing general information and tentative plans Mr. Sasser spoke of the benefits derived from the Corn Show last year, as follows: "The farmers in this section were so enthused over the prizes offered by Mr. George Hutaff and myself in the Spring of 1913, that for the first time in years they planted corn this season after the early crops. This condition has given the merchants many dollars on their accounts that they otherwise would not have received had the planters had to buy meat and corn.

"I am willing to assert that only about 15 per cent. of the acreage of New Hanover county is developed at present; I mention this because we never had a better opportunity to cooperate with the Agricultural Department, of the Coast Line, in securing the best classes of immigrants to locate in this section and assist in developing our lands. I believe that the Corn Show will serve as an impetus for future efforts along this line.

"The show will be given this year under canvass at Winoca Terrace. The auditorium tent will be 40x60 feet with seating capacity of 500. The exhibit tent will be 70x160 feet. What we need now is more contestants for the various prizes and I believe if we can give the matter sufficient publicity that the number will be doubled during this month."

On account of the recent long drought it has been decided to extend the time for registration for the corn contest for Mr. Sasser's prizes, which amounts to $200, from July 4 to August 1. The first prize is $50; second prize $40; third prize $35; fourth prize $30; fifth prize $25; sixth prize $20. As previously stated contestants must have two witnesses to measure the acre of ground and to witness the gathering and measuring of their corn.

The Corn Show will be conducted on a much larger scale this year and while the registration at present exceeds that of last year efforts are being made to cover a much larger territory and secure a great many more contestants. Those who have registered for the contest to date are as follows: Glenn Johnson, Wilmington; Thos. O. Murray, Wilmington; J. W. Murray, Wilmington; C. L. Dempsey, Wilmington; C. F. Seitter, Wilmington; R. G. Smith, Wilmington; Vernon Kerr, Wilmington; Erastus W. Murray, Wilmington; W. A. Taylor, Wilmington; Wm. A. Futrell, Wilmington; Perry S. Murray, Wilmington; Kenneth K. Harper, who was formerly in the employ of Mr. Dortch. At the time the cutting occurred there was in progress in the court of Justice of the Peace Owen the trial of a suit involving some business differences between the two men.

One of the important matters to come up for discussion at the approaching State Convention of the North Carolina Goods Roads Association, to be held in Durham, July 9th, and 10th, will be the proposed Coast to Mountains highway, a subject that is of local interest because of the fact that Wilmington has been mentioned as the eastern terminus of the highway.

Lieut. Gov. Daughtridge and his committee on entertainment and conventions from the Chamber of Commerce are going to land Rocky Mount for the next annual meeting of the convention of Carolina farmers or know the reason why. The local chairman with committee have been assured accommodations from the hotels and boarding houses at Rocky Mount and with this big fundamental point behind them they are now out gunning for the convention.

With indications pointing to the most successful and enjoyable meeting in the history of the organization, the members of the North Carolina League of Building & Loan Associations will gather at Wrightsville Beach next Wednesday and Thursday for the 11th annual convention. The convention will be called to order Wednesday afternoon, July 8, at 3 o'clock, by President E. L. Keesler, of Charlotte.

George H. Bellamy, "the Duke of Brunswick," while in Washington Monday, gave The Star correspondent an interview in which the "Duke" comes out flat-footed for a legalized Statewide primary. Not only that, but the "Duke" declares that unless the Democratic party takes such action the party is due for a fall such as overtook the party of Jefferson in the dark days when the Populists rode rough shod over the State.

A Sunday afternoon "joy ride" developed unexpected features and had serious results at Asheville Monday when Charles Sorrells, a prominent young business man of Asheville and a member of a well known Western North Carolina family, a married man, was held for the criminal term of the Buncombe county Superior court without bail on a charge of criminal assault, while Fred J. Wadford, who drove the machine, was sent to the same court under bond of $500 to answer to a charge of aiding and abetting in the commission of the crime.

Effective July 1st, all first, second and third class postoffices in North Carolina were placed upon a new classification, and, of course, a change in salary. Of the larger offices, Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Reidsville showed an increase in business sufficient to advance the salary of the postmaster. Reidsville made the largest gain and the pay of the postmaster will be increased from $2,300 to $2,500, while Greensboro and Winston-Salem get $100 each, Greensboro is advanced from $3,300 to $3,400, and Winston-Salem is advanced to the same figure.

In his letter of transmission and recommendations to Governor Craig and the General Assembly, State Commissioner of Insurance James R. Young goes into a number of important matters as to insurance conditions. He states that the National Association of Insurance Commissioners has a committee at work revising the present "Standard Fire Insurance Policy" in effect in this and many other States and the perfected amendments will be reported for adoption at the annual convention of the association in Asheville September 15th.

At the State Department of Agriculture the statement is made that crop conditions are developing very satisfactorily now in all parts of the State. The wheat crop now being threshed out is proving to be a considerable improvement over last year's fine crop and the total yield will be very considerably more than last year. Corn crop conditions are very promising and with fair seasons for the remainder of the growing period the yield will be well up to the average. Commissioner Graham says that the tobacco crop has suffered most.

Fireman W. B. Glenn, captain of fire station No. 2, was instantly killed; Chief J. H. Wallace, of the Charlotte fire department, was so badly injured that he died in three hours; Firemen Randolph Erwin and Clyde F. Todd were seriously injured; Fireman R. T. Barnes was slightly injured, and half a dozen others were slightly bruised by an explosion of dynamite in Charlotte Wednesday morning, when the firemen rushed to extinguish a blaze in a barn at No. 309 South Cedar street, belonging to J. B. Hawkins, a contractor.

The election of officers for the ensuing year and an unusually able address on "The Southern Lawyer, His Traditions and Opportunities," by Hon. A. L. Brooks, of Greensboro, were the principal features of the closing session of the North Carolina Bar Association which came to an end at Wrightsville Beach Wednesday, having convened Monday night. The meeting was largely attended and was made especially notable by the large increase in membership at this time, and by addresses by Chief Justice Clark, of North Carolina, and Rome G. Brown, of Minnesota. The officers nominated by the committee on new officers and unanimously elected Wednesday, are as follows: President, J. Crawford Biggs, Raleigh; first vice president, Julius C. Martin, Asheville; second vice president, Frank Nash, Hillsboro; third vice president, Henry A. Grady, Clinton; secretary and treasurer, Thos. W. Davis, Wilmington; new members of the executive committee to fill vacancies, D. L. Ward, Newbern; A. W. Cooke, Greensboro; E. N. Land, Goldsboro. Delegates to the American Association were appointed as follows: W. W. Kitchin, Raleigh; A. W. McLean, Lumberton; W. A. Townes, Wilmington. Alternates: A. B. Andrews, Raleigh; H. F. Seawell, Carthage; O. F. Mason, Gastonia.

MOSTLY CONTEMPLATIVE

By T. W. Chambliss.

'Therefore all things whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Matthew's Gospel.

The ideal of practical daily life is found in the sentence spoken by the Gallilean teacher centuries ago. The question that confronts the man of the twentieth century is the application of the truth to the every day life.

Is the Golden Rule—That is the title we have given to the scriptural quotation, to be taken literally? Shall I so understand the Gallilean teacher? One of the clearest explanations was given by George D. Broadman:

"In view of the fact that God is your Father and treats you as sons, giving you good gifts according as you ask Him; therefore do ye yourselves gave your Father's spirit, doing unto others as He does to you, giving them the good gifts they ask of you, even as He gives you the good gifts you ask of Him. Your Father treats you as His sons; therefore treat your fellows as your brothers: for common Fatherhood means common brotherhood."

The truth is all that you expect from your neighbor, all that you desire him to bring into you life, all that you wish for him, all this you shall be willing to give unto him. It is that we are to make our own desires as the rule of treatment of our neighbor. The rules of our dealings with others is to be our wish concerning their treatment of us. It is not hard for us to decide how we wish men to treat us. We wish to be treated even a little more kindly—with a little more consideration—without too much justice and with even an allowance for our weakness, our mistakes, our misunderstandings, our misfortunes. With this measure do we desire our lives measured.

Every thought toward our fellow man is to be in accordance with this teaching. Every action, every business dealing, and even our friendly intercourse is to be in accordance with the command given us. The application of the rule in every day conversation would bring about a revolution. We often judge others and speak unkindly of the fault, forgetting their many virtues. We "judge of the bay when the tide is out and the whole career by one mistake." We would rather our lives be not so judged. The smallest mind can find a flaw. Large capacity is needed for true criticism.

This is truly the Golden Rule. It is the Love Rule. If applied every day the economic problems of earth would be solved. The result of the rule would be mercy and justice to all. The rule can be applied daily to ordinary affairs. It must not be that I shall be ought against my neighbor's interest. The laborer should give an honest hour's service for the hour's pay. The merchant should exchange his merchandise for a fair profit and the purchaser should be willing and glad to give the fair profit, for thus "ye would that men should do unto you." Daily application of the law of God would bring happiness and joy throughout the land.

Will the time ever come when the Golden Rule will be the practiced law of community and individual? It seems probable. The signs of the times are pointing that way and the future is brighter than the past. Men and women are beginning to realize the truth of God's word. Every man is my brother and I am my Brother's keeper. Anyway, the time will not come until you and I begin the living in accordance to the rule. Suppose we begin this morning.

"Therefore all thing whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

Washington, July 3.—The House elections committee today declared Representative George W. Loft, Democrat, of New York; Dick T. Morgan, and Bird S. McGuire, Republicans, of Oklahoma, legally elected.

The Week Locally

Incidental to his remarks to City Council with reference to a new lighting contract with the city, Mr. Hugh MacRae, president of the Tidewater Power Company, took occasion to speak at some length in regard to the whole lighting question, which has been agitated by Councilman T. W. Wood of late.

The first large party of Georgians to arrive at Wrightsville Beach came in over the Seaboard Wednesday morning. Estimates as to the number of people varied, but the official figures were 117. Wrightsville Beach has always been popular with Georia people and this year with the low rates offered by both the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard will prove no exception to the rule.

Notwithstanding the fact that New Hanover now has 50 per cent. more weeks of Superior court in a year than formerly, there were less than half the number of cases tried the past year that would have been naturally expected to be, according to a statement of Major W. N. Harriss, clerk of Superior court. The next term of Superior court will be in September.

Messrs. L. W. Moore, a well known local real estate man, and Mr. O. T. Wallace, a former Wilmingtonian, now of Birmingham, Ala., who with his family is spending the summer at Wrightsville Beach, have closed a deal for the Giles Westbrook tract of land in Harnett township, lying on the left of the Tidewater Power Company's tracks just across Bradley's Creek on the way to the beach. The consideration was said to have been between $20,000 and $25,000.

The Hotel Wilmington, now rapidly nearing completion at Front and Walnut streets, will be operated on both the American and European plan, according to a statement made by Mr. T. A. Green, the builder. Seven stories of the structure are now complete, save for the finishing touches on the interior, and the new hostelry will be thrown open to the public some time during this month, possibly by the 15th.

Dr. D. W. Herring, who has been a missionary in China for 29 years, now at home on a furlough, delivered an address of much interest on the great influence of the gospel upon the people of the Far East, at Fifth Street Methodist church last Sunday night. Dr. Herring is a brother of Mr. J. P. Herring, of this county, and is now here on a visit. This is his first visit to the United States in 12 years. He will return to China after a year of rest.

Enabled by an increased appropriation for this year, the health department is planning to greatly extend the usefulness of the city laboratory, which is now well equipped for all classes of work, and beginning July 1 a weekly test will be made of milk from all the dairies supplying the local market. The milk will be graded and scored from standpoints of quality and the sanitary conditions of the dairy farms, and results of these scores will be made public.

In order that the members of the Girls' Friendly Society of the Diocese of East Carolina may have a place where they can spend their vacations under ideal conditions, a large cottage will be erected on the northern extension of Wrightsville Beach near the Oceanic Hotel. Work has been begun on the structure and it is planned to have it completed by August 1. It will be two stories in height and will be 50x70 feet in size. The total cost will be borne by the members of the society.

After a conference with the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Dr. L. B. Sasser and Mr. J. P. Herring, county farm demonstrator, have arranged a list of products for which prizes will be offered at the New Hanover Corn Show and Industrial Fair which will be held in Wilmington in the fall. Those competing for prizes will be required to send exhibits to the fair. The list of prizes for the different exhibits has not yet been arranged except for the corn show.

Acting on the advice of City Attorney E. K. Bryan, who held that the papers were not drawn in conformity with the provisions of the bill authorizing a commission form of government for Wilmington and were therefore invalidated; Councilman T. W. Wood withdrew his petitions calling upon City Council to call an election for the purpose of determining whether or not the city shall issue bonds in the sum of $150,000 for a municipal electric light plant, and borrow $25,000 wherewith to sink a battery of deep wells for a municipal water supply. The petitions were signed by more than 800 citizens.

City Council, in weekly session, accepted the new contract of the Tidewater Power Company to furnish the street lighting for the coming year, on the basis of a moonlight schedule as heretofore at a reduction of several hundred dollars in the rate as charged last year. A number of other matters featured the session Wednesday, including the introduction by Councilman Wood of a resolution providing that an appropriation of $25,000 for the purpose of sinking a battery of deep wells be made, and which on objection of Councilman Loughlin, went over to the next meeting.

The Liver as Aid To Blood Purity

The Natural Stimulus Required is Not the Purgative Kind.

Most Pills Are Better if Thrown Away.

Important as it to keep the bowels open, it should be remembered that such action does not necessarily mean that the liver has been stimulated. The action of S. S. S. is a natural liver tonic, but not a bowel mover. It works in the liver cells to assist in the natural and necessary function of converting from the blood certain constituents into what are known as assimilable products. These are readily absorbed into the body tissues to constantly provide new and healthy material for that which is being destroyed by the energy of tissue changes.

The presence of any blood trouble naturally suggests a sluggish liver, but there is required those medicinal properties which, upon reaching the liver, still retain their catalytic energy to keep on through the blood circulation to do battle with impurities wherever they may have settled.

Rheumatism, catarrh, anemia, most skin diseases and other results of impure blood, while implicating the liver by their morbid influences, are quickly checked by S. S. S. Its action throughout the blood circulation results in the stimulation of the tissue cells to the healthy and judicious selection of their own essential nutriment.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it.

Take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist, address The Swift Specific Company, 526 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Face To Face Courtesy

GOOD telephone service depends largely upon mutual courtesy. The telephone is more useful to those who talk as if face to face, for civility removes difficulties and facilitates the promptest possible connections.

As in other intercourse, it often happens that two or more people wish to talk with the same person at the same time. Without courtesy confusion is inevitable, and the confusion is greater when the people can not see each other.

The operators must be patient and polite under all circumstances, but they will do better work if they meet patience and politeness on the part of telephone users.

The Bell Telephone service enters intimately into the social and business life of each individual. The best results come through the practice of mutual courtesy.

Gossip From Washington

PRESIDENT WILSON has a double in public life. He is Representative McKenzie of Illinois.

As Representative McKenzie was leisurely strolling through the lobby of a Washington hotel one evening last winter a stranger approached him.

"Pardon me, Mr. President," he said; "I know you are most democratic in your habits, and the people admire you for it, but really, sir, this is too great a risk for the ruler of the United States to take, thus wandering about the city at night, alone and unattended by even a single guard. You owe it to the people to be more careful."

Mr. McKenzie thanked the man for his kind interest and promised to be more careful in future.

Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, who is being boosted to succeed Oscar W. Underwood as floor leader of the house should that branch of congress remain Democratic, fell in love when thirteen years old. It wasn't one of those mere boyhood fancies, either, for when he was nineteen and taking up the law he married his first and only sweetheart. Kitchin was thirty-one when he was elected to congress.

CLAUDE KITCHIN.

Representative Fred A. Britten enjoys the distinction of being the only Republican congressman in the United States to defeat a sitting congressman by election to the Sixty-third congress. He is a native of Chicago and represents the Ninth district of Illinois. He is engaged in building construction work and is a man of wealth. His secretary, Frank F. Maxwell, is one of the veterans in experience at the capitol. Mr. Maxwell formerly was secretary for the late Judge William M. Lanning of Trenton and also of former Representative Ira W. Wood, also of Trenton, who has been mentioned as the possible choice of his district next fall.

Senator Root of New York at a reception was discussing the Mexican situation.

"Steer a middle course," he said to an extremist. "These extreme ideas are always wrong.

"Thus at a tea one young girl asked another:

"'And where are you going this summer, dear?'

"'From the way mother talks,' was the reply, 'you'd think we were going to Newport. From the way father talks you'd think we were going to starve. But I suppose we'll steer a middle course, as usual, and put in a fortnight at a twelve dollar boarding house.'"

ELIHU ROOT.

They were talking about the doctor and his diagnosis in the lobby of a Washington hotel the other evening when Representative Thomas G. Patten of New York told of an incident that happened in Gotham.

Some time ago, he said, an esteemed citizen who wasn't enjoying his usual appetite and cheerfulness consulted a physician and was told he had tobacco heart. The information he imparted to his sympathetic friends. A few days later one of his friends met the doctor on the street.

"Say, doc," remarked the friend, "did you tell Jim Murphy that he had tobacco heart?"

"Jim Murphy," repeated the doctor thoughtfully. "Yes, I believe I did. Why?"

"Nothing," was the smiling reply of the friend; "only if you had ever smoked one of his cigars you would have made the diagnosis cabbage heart."

COUNTRY HOUSE GUESTS.

A hostess who entertains a great many young people has found that when they have something to do about the house they feel more at home. So she suggests that they are at liberty to gather and arrange the flowers from her beautiful gardens, and for this bit of work she has provided every possible convenience.

On a small porch overlooking the water is a long, high wooden table covered with copper. On one end of it is an assortment of vases, jars, jugs, bowls and glass lined baskets of artistic shapes and colors, and near by is a large brown wicker hamper into which the debris goes.

For gathering the flowers there are leather lined wicker baskets on standards and fitted with garden shears. With all these conveniences, no suitable vases to be looked for, no water to carry, no disorder to be cleaned up, arranging flowers in this house is a poetic joy.

Black and White Ornaments.

In the jewelry lines black and white effects take the lead for the coming season, according to the Dry Goods Economist. This is very apparent in necklaces and lavallieres, where effective combinations of jet and crystal and onyx and crystal are offered in a wide variety of designs. Many of these are combined with rhinestones, and the smartest designs are those which introduce the heavy black silk cord in lieu of a chain.

THE CLEVER GIRL.

She undertakes nothing that she does not understand.

She is mistress of tact and knows how to make the social wheels run smoothly.

She makes the other think herself the cleverest.

She acts like hot water on tea—extracts the best from everybody.

She always makes the best of any situation.

She is one whose ability is never unpleasantly felt by the rest of the world.

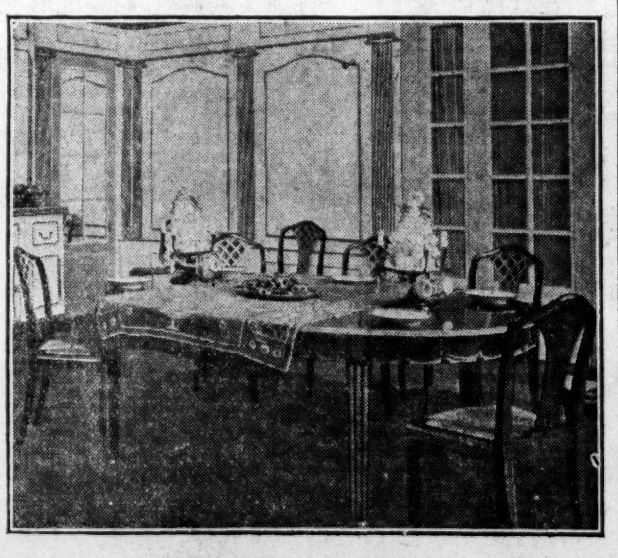
She acknowledges her neighbors' right to live and doesn't believe that she alone is the motive power of the world.

She is at ease in any place and among any people.

Daisy Party.

A charming way to entertain children in summer would be to give a daisy party. The invitations should be on daisies cut from white bristol board, with a tiny photograph of the young hostess in the center. Write the invitation on the petals, in which invitation each little girl should be asked to wear a white dress and yellow sash. When the guests arrive give each a piece of yellow crape paper and some white paper daisies, or real daisies if possible, out of which they must make hats. The prize could be a daisy pin. A prize should also be given to the girl making the prettiest daisy chain. Decorate with vases and bowls filled with daisies and serve refreshments composed of yellow ice and daisy cookies.

SIMPLY BUT ELEGANTLY FURNISHED DINING ROOM



DINING ROOM IN BLUE AND WHITE.

THE simplicity of the blue and white dining room illustrated here is misleading, for this is the kind of simplicity that costs. The charming Sheraton set, the dainty china and the linen cloth are the best of their kind. The polished floor of the dining room has a blue art rug in the center. The paneled walls are finished in white, while above the molding is a charming art paper frieze showing garlands of fruit.

FRIENDSHIPS.

Friend is a word of royal tone;
Friend is a poem all alone.

The only way to have a friend is to be one; it is a friendly heart that has plenty of friends.

We have few friendships because we are unwilling to pay the price of friendship.

To the young, friendship comes as the beauty of spring; to be old, it is as the bloom of autumn.

The highest friendship will always lead us to the highest pleasures.

They seem to take away the sun from the world who withdraws friendship from life.

Friendship is love without his wings.

True friendship is like good health; the value of it is seldom known until it has been lost.

When two friends part they should lock up each other's secrets and exchange keys.

Packing Blouses.

To fold a blouse without creasing when packing put it face downward on the table, fold the two side seams back so as to meet in the center back, lay the sleeves fairly flat on to the turned back side pieces and fold the blouse in half so that the cuffs show several inches above the neck back. Place a pin through the top of yoke, securing it to the front hems of blouse, thus making it a convenient size for packing.

HIGH COIFFURES.

They Are Essential to Comfort With Some of the Season's Hats.

The high coiffure which fashion demands and which is really necessary for comfort when wearing some of the season's hats is achieved by the use of cushions for the hair. Some of these cushions of fine wire are light and comfortable. A simple example of the high coiffure is illustrated here.

TEACHING EMBROIDERY.

The quaint embroidery patterns of cunning little animals, birds or figures depicting Mother Goose rimes offer possibilities for the mother to teach little girls the first steps in embroidery, as all these designs are done in a simple outlining or cross stitching. These patterns will hold the interest of a child and if used to decorate some of her own belongings will not only keep the little fingers busy, but will implant a love of needlecraft as well.

Aprons, a scarf for the dressing table, covers for schoolbooks, bibs and rompers for the small sister or brother can all be ornamented in simple but fascinating patterns. Bean bags with an animal figure in cross stitch on each side will add to the fun of the work.

Mercerized cottons, which will stand any amount of washing, can now be secured, and the embroidery should be done in the mercerized colors.

WHAT MOLES MEAN.

A mole on the right cheek or right arm signifies happiness in love affairs.

One on the right hand shows a future happy marriage.

On the left hand, the possession of a mole betokens an unfortunate (from the worldly point of view) marriage.

Moles on the right cheek or arm, in combination with one or more on the left hand, point to more good fortune in love affairs than in money matters.

A mole on the chin, if it be light yellow in color, shows a woman to be a good housewife. If brown in color it portends a happy married life, but possibly troublesome children.

A mole in that unusual position, the tip of the nose, shows that the owner is likely to excite much admiration, but in consequence attract very jealous lovers.

A sign of wealth, present or future, is to have a mole at the right hand corner of one's mouth.

On the other hand, a mole at the left hand corner of the mouth is a warning to its owner to beware of treachery and of a false lover.

Coats For Baby.

For the lingerie coat of the very small baby punch work would probably be too elaborate, but for the little one two years old and upward a lingerie coat embroidered in punch work is very pretty.

The design used, however, must not be very large. Clover leaves are about the right size, and for the child who is somewhat older a flower as large as wild roses or dogwood blossoms can be used. The leaves, too, may be done in punch work, although some might consider this leaf punch work, together with the flowers, too ornamental for little people.

When the little batiste coat has under it its padded lining of colored silk the effect is charming. The lining must be one of only three colors, white, pink or blue. Other colors would not be suitable for baby. The edges and hem of the coat may be either hemstitched or scalloped and worked in buttonhole stitch.

FOR FLOWER LOVERS.

Cleanliness is as necessary to growing plants as it is to successful housekeeping. Pots and leaves should be frequently washed and sprayed.

To set growing house plants in the bathtub and spray them with a bath spray is one of the best methods of giving their leaves the necessary moisture.

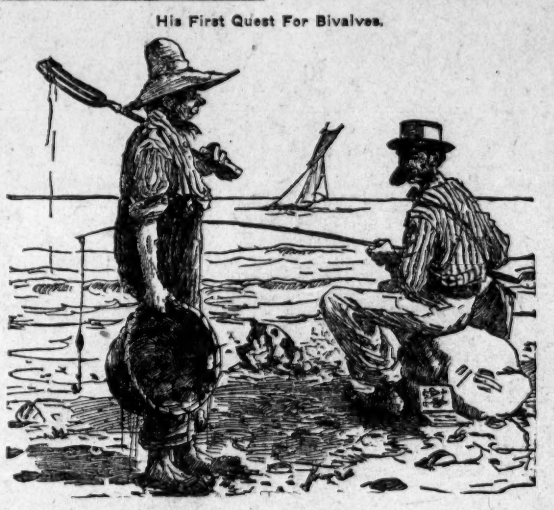
A pansy bed is an indispensable part of the little home garden, because pansies can always be picked.

Summer Tea Carriage.

The handsomest wicker tea carriage was seen the other day. It was practically the size of an average baby carriage, perhaps a trifle smaller and less bunglesome, and was made of the natural wood. It had three wheels, of course, and a lower shelf. The top was fitted with an adjustable tray, the edges of which were finished with a braid of the wicker. The handle of the carriage was particularly pretty.

DROLLERY OF THE NIMBLE WITS

His First Quest For Bivalves.



Beach Dweller—Fine mornin'.

Mr. Coddington—Yes, but not good for clam fishing evidently. I've been sitting here an hour and haven't had a bite, though I was told it was the best place on the shore for them.

One Opportunity.

Recently a lady amateur song writer sent to a popular actress vocalist the words of a new song which she had written. The actress could see nothing attractive in the song and read the verses to her husband.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed when she had finished. "What's she talking about? What does she call it?"

"She calls it 'I Wonder if He'll Miss Me?'" was the reply.

"Well," said the husband, "if he does he ought never to be trusted with a gun again!"

Many of 'Em Do.

"When do you think a wife is justified in taking money from her husband's pocket?"

"Whenever she finds any there."

Why Should He?

Askitt—Do you believe in the survival of the fittest?

Digwell—I don't believe in the survival of anybody. I am an undertaker.

The Other Side of It.

"You don't seem enthusiastic about elevating the stage."

"No," said the theatrical manager. "The more you try to elevate the stage the more depressed the box office seems to become."

Dread Circle of Adversity.

A woman whose pastor asked after her health replied dolefully, "I feel very well, but I always feel bad when I feel well, because I know I'm going to feel worse afterward."

Easy to Believe.

The Boastful One—I'm smoking a terrible lot of cigars lately.

The Other (bored to distraction)—If that's one of them they are a terrible lot.

A Distorted Simile.

She—This new dress of mine fits me like a glove.

He—More like a mitten, I should say.

Today's Short Story

The Bogus Clerical

HAVING been ordered by the bishop to proceed to Helena to fill the place of a brother clergyman who had been taken ill, I was proceeding by stage—the only vehicle then in use in Montana—and alone in the coach. Shortly before dusk the driver pulled up in a lonely place, and I heard him talking with some one. Then a man opened the door and got in. He was roughly dressed, but his face was singularly refined.

The stranger opened conversation and we soon got into an animated discussion. He knew by my canonicals that I was a clergyman of the Episcopal church, and I told him that I was the Rev. Charles Dingley, going to Helena to preach the next day.

"Well, now," he said, "that's strange. I am going to Helena for the same purpose."

"You?"

"Certainly. I may not appear very clerical in this toggery," glancing at his high boots, corduroy trousers and blue flannel shirt.

"You see, I was out fishing when I received the bishop's order, and, not having time to go home and get my priestly garments, I cut across the country to meet this coach."

There was something very extraordinary about this.

"I'll trouble you to take off your clothes," he said.

I laughed. Putting his hand to his hip, he drew a six shooter and placed the muzzle disgustingly near my nose. It was now evident that there was some desperado business in the wind, and, realizing my defenselessness, I took off my coat, my vest, my trousers and turned them over. When he donned my low crowned, broad brimmed clerical hat he looked far more of a clergyman than I even when appropriately dressed.

"May I put on your clothes?" I asked. "I must wear something."

"Certainly."

In less than half an hour we pulled up at the —— hotel, and the coach door was opened by the landlord. My companion stepped out and shut the door. I heard him tell the landlord that there was a lunatic inside the coach and he had better be careful. He then informed him that he was the Rev. Charles Dingley and had come to preach the next day in place of the Rev. Mr. Goggin, who was ill; that on the way a rough looking man had got into the coach, who conceived himself to be a clergyman, at once giving evidence of insanity. I thrust my head out of the coach door to protest, but I saw at a glance the futility of doing so.

The landlord held the coach door till men were summoned, who took me into the tavern and upstairs to a room, where I was locked in. There was a cot in the room, and soon after my incarceration the door was opened and my supper handed in.

It was the next afternoon about 3 o'clock that I heard a number of footsteps on the stairs, and my door was suddenly unlocked and thrown open. There stood three well dressed men.

"Do you know anything about the man who came in the coach with you yesterday?" asked one of them.

"Yes. He forced me to give him my clothes, and when we arrived told the landlord I was a lunatic."

"And you are"—

"The Rev. Charles Dingley."

"Gentlemen, we have been sold."

"Well?" I asked.

"The Rev. Charles Dingley who preached this morning made an impassioned appeal for funds to be used in erecting a reformatory where road agents and swindlers could be gently led back to the paths of virtue. He got the biggest collection we have had since Easter, but when we whose duty it is to take charge of all church funds went to the vestry to count the money we found the door locked. When we succeeded in getting in the bird had flown, and the collection was not to be found."

It was afterward discovered that the man who had robbed me of my clothes and had so wrought upon his hearers was called Slippery Jim, and he had perpetrated the neatest trick ever played on the unsuspecting citizens of that region.

JUDGE BEN LINDSAY ROASTS TANGO DANCE

But is Not Opposed to Dancing "As a Pleasure."

Says Tango and Kindred Dances Lead More Girls Into Police Courts Than Any Other One Thing.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Tarboro, N. C., July 4.—While in this city to deliver his Chautauqua address, Judge Ben B. Lindsay, of Denver, Colo., one of the most astute social economists in the United States, and the man with whom originated the idea of the juvenile court for the trial separately of youthful law-breakers, said, apropos of the great wave of immorality that has swept over the country following the general adoption of the tango and its kindred dances, that this dance had brought more girls into the police courts than any other one thing he could remember since he was placed on the bench in Denver some 15 years ago.

Judge Lindsay is widely known throughout the United States as a judge, an author and a social economist. For years he has worked toward the end of having every city in the United States adopt the system of juvenile courts where young offenders can be tried without bringing them into contact with the older criminals and in almost every large city in this country the plan has been tried and found successful. He has possibly tried more young people than any other living judge, and a close student of sociological affairs he has gained the reputation of being an authority.

"I am not opposed to dancing as a pleasure," said Judge Lindsay, "for it is a pleasant exercise and recreation. The grave trouble with the present dances is that they lend themselves so readily to abuse and that so many people take advantage of this fact. When danced properly it is very pretty, but there are few people, outside the professional class, who can execute the steps without depending upon the physical support of their partner and therein lies the trouble. In the large cities laws were passed prohibiting this dance in the lower class halls, but this has not gone far enough. The suggestion was there to those who would heed it, but apparently only a very few saw it and applied it to themselves, and unless something more radical is done the results will be terrible. Of my own knowledge it has brought more girls into the juvenile courts than any other one thing and for this reason, if for no other, it should be abolished or regulated. The masses depend upon the few for suggestions and in this matter society must lead back to propriety and modesty instead of in the other direction, for the fault is theirs, and the opportunity is before them. When someone tells you 'Why they are dancing it altogether in New York and Chicago,' believe them, for 'they' are dancing it every night—in the dives. In the better class of society it is danced—by professionals, and those who have the agility and leisure to learn it properly, and by no one else. Society says the dance has not hurt it, but this does not take away the fact that society owes a debt to the masses, and in leading the masses into indiscretions, society is to blame."

Judge Lindsay was not bitter about it and said he was only reciting facts that are known to everyone who has studied the matter carefully from a social economic standpoint, and his standing in the legal world and his reputation as a student of social conditions gives great weight to his remarks.

HOME-COMING WEEK TO BE HELD AT KENANSVILLE.

Political Pot in Duplin Again Beginning to Simmer.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Warsaw, N. C., July 4.—Preparations are being made for Home-coming week to be held in Kenansville the first week in August, and the indications are that this will be one of the biggest celebrations ever held in Duplin county. The Atlantic & Carolina Railroad, which is being built from here to Kenansville is expected to have their formal opening on the first.

The Duplin County Confederate Veterans Reunion will probably be held on the sixth, and the Duplin County Teachers' Institute will be held during the first week of the month. The people throughout the county are taking an active interest in the matter, and it seems that this will be a big time for the whole county. There will be speaking by several of the most prominent speakers in the county, a basket picnic and a barbecue will be given in addition to the other events and the social part of the programme is expected to play an important part.

The Board of Trade of this town has inaugurated a campaign for a large number of new members, and every effort is being made by the body to secure the number wanted. Although this board is a comparatively new organization it has done a number of things for the interest of the town and it is now their intention to secure a larger number of members and then tackle some larger problems which are facing the town.

Mr. W. L. Carlton planted one bushel of peas in the early part of the spring, after he had harvested this crop he planted three barrels of Irish potatoes, he has just harvested this crop, and the two crops brought him $172.85, he now has corn planted on this ground and the prospects are that he will obtain a yield of 50 bushels on this acre of land. This would have been a good yield if this had been an ordinary year, but considering the dryness of the season it is remarkable.

The political pot is again beginning to simmer in this county. A large number of candidates have announced themselves for the various county offices. Much interest is also being taken in the second preferential primary which is to be held in this district, and it is a very difficult matter to make any predictions in regard to the outcome of this matter. Both sides are claiming that they will win.

WHO SHOT RICH MRS. BAILEY TO DEATH IN DOCTOR'S OFFICE? WHY WAS HIS WIFE SO JEALOUS SHE USED A DICTOGRAPH?

Freeport, N. Y., July 4.—Who killed Mrs. William D. Bailey? Why was Mrs. Edwin Carman jealous of her husband, Dr. Carman, in whose consulting room Mrs. Bailey was shot to death? These questions are awaiting answers in the murder mystery which has startled this quiet little Long Island town. Mrs. Bailey was apparently shot to death by a revolver aimed through the window of the doctor's office early in the evening after she left her handsome home at Hempstead to consult him about her health unknown to her husband. Dr. Carman said Mrs. Bailey was an utter stranger to him. He claimed he thought the bullet was meant for him, but he escaped it, he said, because he ducked in time. Mrs. Carman admitted that she was jealous of her husband and had installed a dictograph in his office so that she could listen to what was happening when he had women patients.

FIVE THOUSAND SWARM THE OLD BATTLEGROUND

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray Features Celebration.

Congressman From Oklahoma Discusses Some of the Modern Problems of Government—Touches Intiative.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Greensboro, N. C., July 4.—Five thousand people today swarmed Guilford Battle Ground and witnessed the annual celebration, where on March 21, 1781, the forces of General Greene and Lord Cornwallis met in the battle that resulted in Yorktown. Despite threatening weather the crowd was as large as usual, while the exercises were above the usual programme.

The day was featured by the addresses of Congressman W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, and Congressman Charles M. Stedman, of the Fifth North Carolina district; a military drill by the Gate City Guards, and two companies from Fort Caswell under the direction of Capt. E. L. Gilmer, a native of Greensboro, and an aeroplane flight by Prof. Terrell.

At 10 o'clock the procession moved from the president's cottage to the speakers' pavilion. In line were the speakers, the officers and directors of the Battle Ground Company, members of the D. A. R. and others in automobiles, chief marshal and assistants, Kernersville cornet band, Coast Artillery.

At the pavilion the band played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," after which the invocation was made by Rev. C. E. Hodgin. Congressman Stedman then spoke briefly of the history of the Battle Ground Company, the part of the battle of Guilford Court House in the Revolution, and the patriotism of North Carolinians, concluding by introducing Congressman Murray.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray was not a stranger to Guilford county people. He had spoken here before on the subject of "Alfalfa" and was here for more than a week in the famous libel trial instituted by Judge S. B. Adams against former Senator Marion Butler. He is an interesting character and a man of great ability. He is probably the best known man in his State. He was chairman of the convention that framed Oklahoma's constitution and has held other important offices. In Congress he is regarded as an able member.

Mr. Murray discussed today some of the modern problems of government, touching upon the initiative, referendum and recall, which he favors; the recall of judicial decisions, which he opposes; woman suffrage, which he says is a matter for the States and not the National government; world peace, which he desires, but thinks is not coming right away, and until it does "we might as well be practical.' He was complimentary to North Carolinians and the part they have always taken in the National government, as well as its record in the wars that involved the people of the commonwealth.

On the platform were the speakers, President Paul W. Schenck, of the Battle Ground Company, who planned the celebration; Col. James T. Morehead, Judge S. B. Adams and a number of others.

Following the address of Mr. Murray one or two short talks were made, and then the speakers and other guests took dinner on the lawn near the president's cottage. At 1 o'clock the airship made a splendid flight over the grounds and took a circle toward the city. This was followed by a drill and sham battle by the companies of coast artillery and local military company under the direction of Capt. Gilmer.

LUMBERTON HAS BIG FOURTH

Several Thousand Visitors Hear Maj. McKinnon on His Commission Government Proposition.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Lumberton, N. C., July 4.—The Fourth passed off quietly here, the programme as arranged being carried out to the letter. Several thousand visitors were in town and all seemed to enjoy the day.

Mr. A. J. McKinnon, of Maxton, addressed a large crowd in the court house on his county government proposition.

Messrs. Dale and Rawls, of Mississippi, who defended Walters in the kidnaping case, were both here and made speeches, telling the people what was the status of affairs. They made good and lasting impressions on our people.

Another interesting game of ball was played between Lumberton and Fairmont. The home team winning by a score of 16 to 8. This ends the series between Lumberton and Fairmont.

Liquor was plentiful, five or six drunks being in the lock-up. A negro was badly cut by an Indian, liquor being the cause.

The fire department did itself "proud" and would have been a credit to any large city.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Bladenboro, N. C., July 4.—Bladenboro celebrated the Glorious Fourth in a safe, sane and enjoyable manner There were no accidents or displays of rowdyism to mar the pleasure of the day. One of the features of the day was the able, patriotic address of Woodbury Lennon, Esq., of the Lumberton bar.

A very appropriate musical programme was rendered by the Bladenboro concert band. The old style picnic dinner arranged by the ladies of the community was declared by all present to be the most bountiful feast ever served in this section. Various athletic contests were carried out and prizes awarded. Large numbers from other towns attended the celebration.

MODERNIZE DECLARATION SAYS PRESIDENT

because you do not convince anybody. But die happy because you believe you tried to serve your country without selling your soul.

"Down in Washington, sometimes when the days are hot and business presses in so terribly and so many things to do that it does not seem possible to do anything in the way it ought to be done it is always possible to lift one's eye above the past for the moment, and as it were, to take into one's whole being that great thing of which we are all apart—that great body of American feeling and American principle.

"No man could do the work he has to do in Washington if he allows himself to feel lonely. He has to make himself feel he is part of the people of the United States and then he cannot feel lonely. And my dream is this, that, as the years go on and the world knows more and more of America, it also will bring out this fountain of youth and renewal, that it will also turn to America for those moral inspirations that lie at the base of human freedom, that it will never fear America unless it finds itself engaged in some enterprise inconsistent with the rights of humanity; that America will come to that day when all shall know she puts human rights above all other rights and that her flag is the flag not only of America but the flag of humanity.

Kansas City, July 4.—The joint convention of the Baptist Young People's Unions of America and South today adopted a recommendation providing for the papointment of a committee of three to represent the B. Y. P. U. in conferences with representatives of the sectional organizations of the country, Canada and the Pacific coast for the purpose of establishing closer co-operation The recommendation also provides an arrangement whereby the unions of the sectional organizations reaching a standard of excellence can be recognized by the B. The Rev. L. C. Barnes, of New York, field secretary of the American Baptist Home Missions Society, in an address charged the young people with the task of driving saloons from the country, settled difficulties between capital and labor and evangelizing Spanish-America.

"Within the next ten years the saloon will be driven from this country," he said, "and the task is yours The tension between capital and labor exhibited in the Colorado mine war is typical of the battle which is on. Yours is the generation which must find the solution.

HUNGARIAN LEADER REACHES NEW YORK.

Wishes to Tell Two Million of His Nationality of Countrymen.

New York, July 4.—Count Michael Karolyi, leader of the independent party in the Hungarian parliament, arrived today to resume in earnest the labor of bringing to the two million Hungarians in America a sense of the plight of their countrymen at home.

"I am sorrier than I can say," speaking of the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, said Count Karolyi. "It is a great loss to our party for the late Archduke would have been much more liberal than the present regime."

"My errand to this country can be explained in a word," said the count. "It is to complete what I started when I was here before. I want to win the moral support of the Hungarians in this country for our cause—that of universal franchise for their countrymen, at home."

Count Karolyi said he expected to visit the principal Southern and Western cities.

"KELLY'S" UNEMPLOYED REACH WASHINGTON.

Slipped Into Capital City and March Down Michigan Avenue.

Washington, June 4.—"General" Kelly's army of unemployed, which made its way from the Pacific coast by foot and rail and which has been encamped on the Virginia side of the Potomac river for a week, today stole quietly into Washington. It marched up Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol and on the steps of the main entrance held sway for 15 minutes before being detected by the police.

Permission to speak from the steps of the capitol had been refused by Vice President Marshall but with Congress not in session and few people about, "Colonel" Charles McLennan, commanding officer, thought it a good time to steal a march on Congress. He succeeded, only to be interrupted during his denunciation of the present form of government.

"Colonel" McLennan was taken into custody but was not locked up.

REQUESTS RESIGNATION OF GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS.

President Calls Upon Minister to Greece for His Withdrawal.

Philadelphia, July 4.—President Wilson has requested the resignation of George Fred Williams, American minister to Greece and Montenegro, as a result of Mr. Williams' public statements regarding the situation in Albania. This became known after the President's arrival here today.

Mr. Williams' own report on his statements were taken up at the cabinet meeting yesterday and afterward Mr. Wilson decided their effect was such that it would be improper for Mr. Williams to longer represent the United States in the Balkans.

It has been understood that Mr. Williams of his own accord, has forwarded his resignation, but so far as could be learned it has not been received by the President.

agents and representatives of Huerta. Rafael Zubaran, Luis Cabrera and other Constitutionalist agents in Washington, asserted tonight they expected no definite word from Carranza about the proposed conference until Monday.

Villa-Carranza Conference.

Torreon, July 4.—That Gen. Carranza is chief of all Constitutionalist forces and that Gen. Villa is chief of the North, was the preliminary agreement arrived at today by the joint commission in session here to adjust the situation created by Carranza's refusal to supply coal and ammunition needed by Villa to continue his campaign on Mexico City.

This is regarded as the basis on which the conference will conduct future negotiations. The opinion prevailed here that Villa would not be hampered in his future military operations against Huerta forces and would have the support of the Constitutionalist National government. It is understood to be the only condition Villa has insisted upon.

George C. Carothers, confidential agent of the United States government, conferred with Gen. Villa today. Roque Gonzales Garza, a Villa official, and Meade Fierro, a Carranza man, secretaries of the conference, issued this statement:

"In today's session the following was agreed to, and approved as the basis of future findings: The division of the North recognized Venustiano Carranza in all things as commander-in-chief of the Constitutionalist army and Gen. Villa solemnly reiterates his loyalty. Gen. Francisco Villa will continue as commander of the division of the North."

Delegates of the Northeast are Gen. Villa's guests.

"We are all patriots," said Gen. Villa last night to his guests. "And we should have the good of our country at heart and do our whole duty as good Mexicans should."

Gen. Luis Cabellero, Governor of Tamaulipas, is a member of the conference.

dependent upon the education of the whole people.

"The aristocratic element in Virginia militated against Jefferson's idea and the industrial conditions of an agricultural State also militated against it," said Mr. Daniels.

"If Virginia had had the wisdom, in spite of its spare settlements, to have adopted Jefferson's system in the full when he promulgated it, I believe the Old Dominion would have been 100-fold richer in wealth and would have added to the primacy she enjoyed in the early days of the Republic."

ANOTHER CASE OF BUBONIC PLAGUE

ed and submitted to abacteriological test. No report has been made on the case yet, Dr. Blue stated.

Charles Lundene who developed the disease last Saturday, died the following day.

W. W. Wilkinson who is now thought to be recovering from the malady was stricken last Sunday.

No other cases have been reported and health authorities consider the situation well in hand.

PRIVATELY REPRIMANDED.

Brig. Gen. Evans to be "Spoken to" by President.

Philadelphia, July 4.—Brig. Gen. R. K. Evans, former commander of the Department of the East, will be privately reprimanded by the President in consequence of a speech at a recent banquet in New York in which Gen. Evans is said to have made indiscreet references to the foreign policy of the United States.

Gen. Evans sent Secretary Garrison a statement on his speech in which he said he had been misquoted and gave his own version of his remarks. While this version is said to have partly satisfied the President, it is understood he decided a reprimand should be given Gen. Evans.

N. C. SOCIALISTS HOLD THEIR STATE CONVENTION.

Nominate H. J. Olive for U. S. Senator and H. C. Jenkins, Commission

Greensboro, N. C., July 4.—The Socialist State convention in session here today nominated H. J. Olive, of Asheville, for United States senator, and H. C. Jenkins, of Morganton, for State Corporation Commissioner, and passed a resolution to petition President Wilson to initiate Federal ownership proceedings against the Colorado coal mines.

Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to Governor Ammons, of Colorado, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

LAWYER SHOOTS CARPENTER.

Tragedy Result of Too Much Friendliness for Man's Wife.

Macon, Ga., July 4.—V. C. Thomason, a carpenter, was shot and killed here today by A. W. Stokes, a lawyer. After Thomason fell it is alleged Stokes fired three more times, all of the shots taking effect. Stokes went to the sheriff's office immediately after the killing and surrendered. He alleged he shot Thomason in self-defense. A coroner's jury ordered him held on a charge of murder.

The lawyer alleges Thomason paid undue attention to his wife.
